DIVERSITY

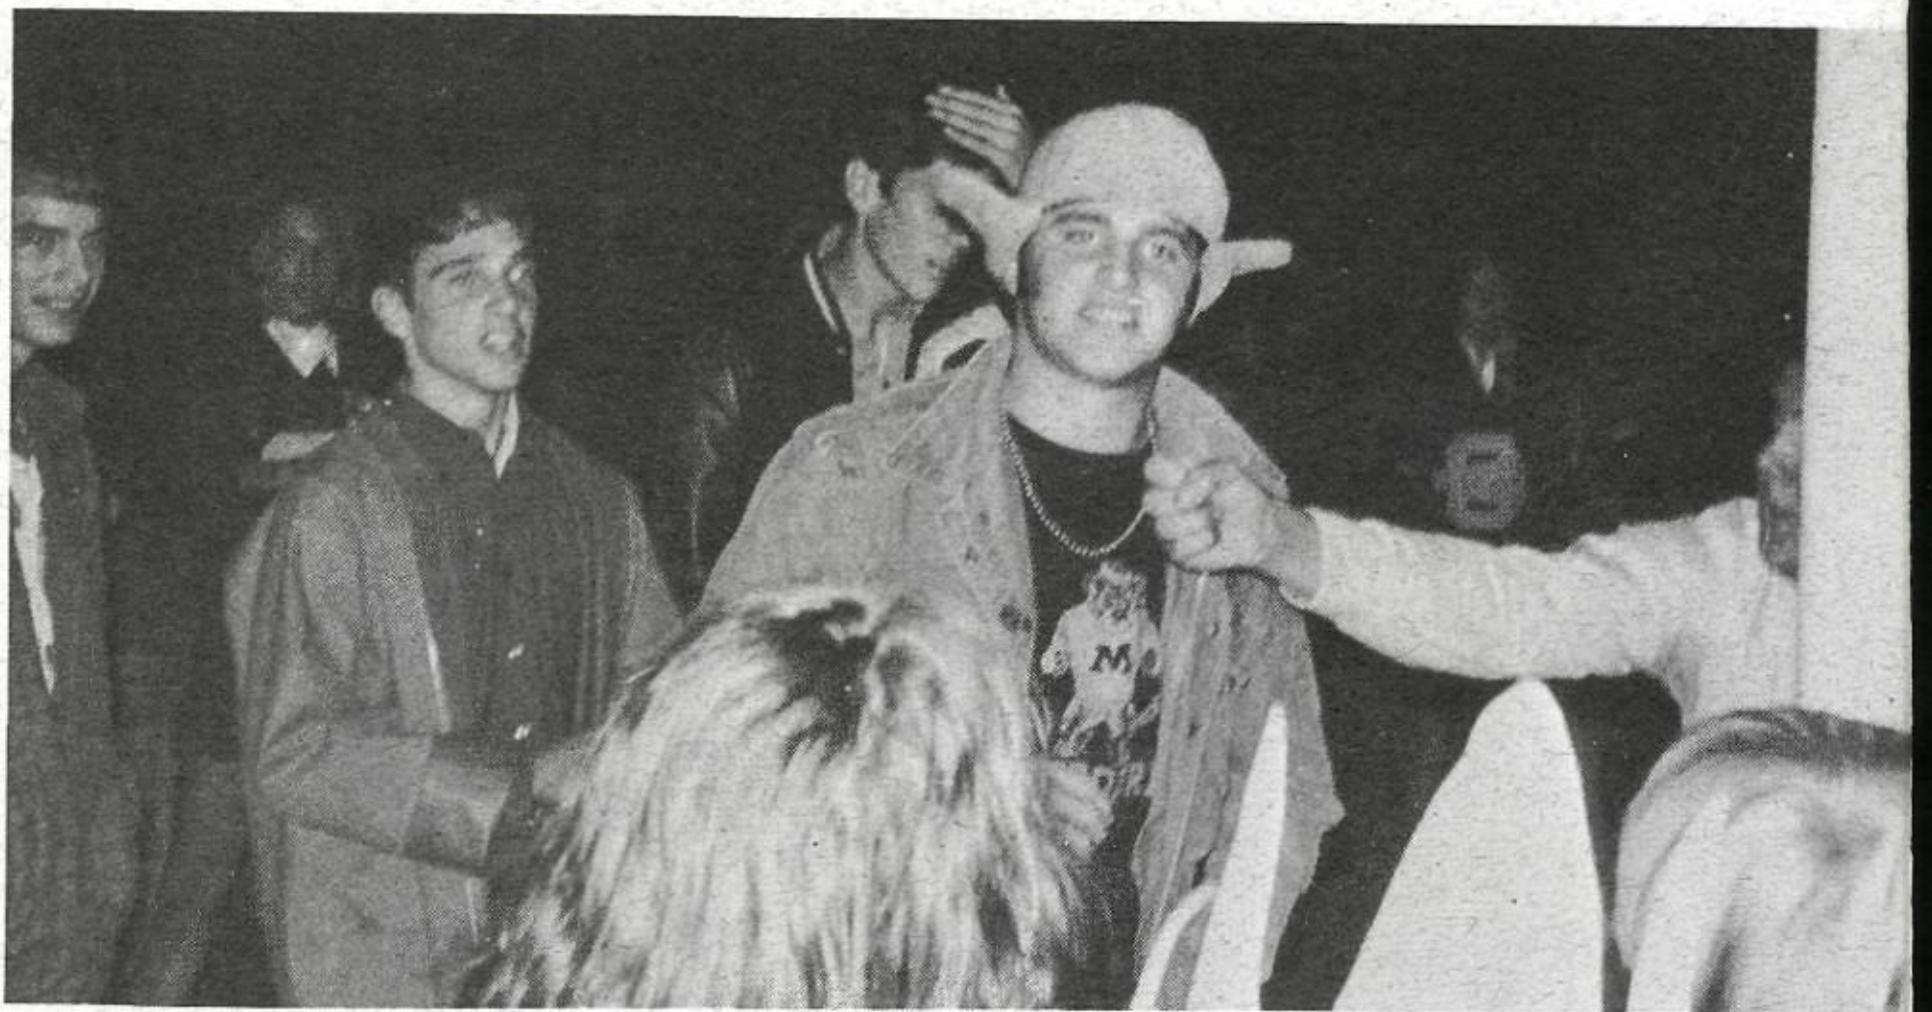

Our life is but a song
Sung among the grasses.
Each human sings his own,
And listens to the songs of others which fill his life.
Each soul is unique . . . every life different.
But like each blade of grass in an open field,
We need others to make us whole.
Our song is Diversity.

Diversity . . . everyday is different . . . each adding to the melody of our song.

Each life is but a blade of grass in the fields of man

Providing Greenwood students with a well-planned educational program, and training student teachers for the future were the goals of our administration.

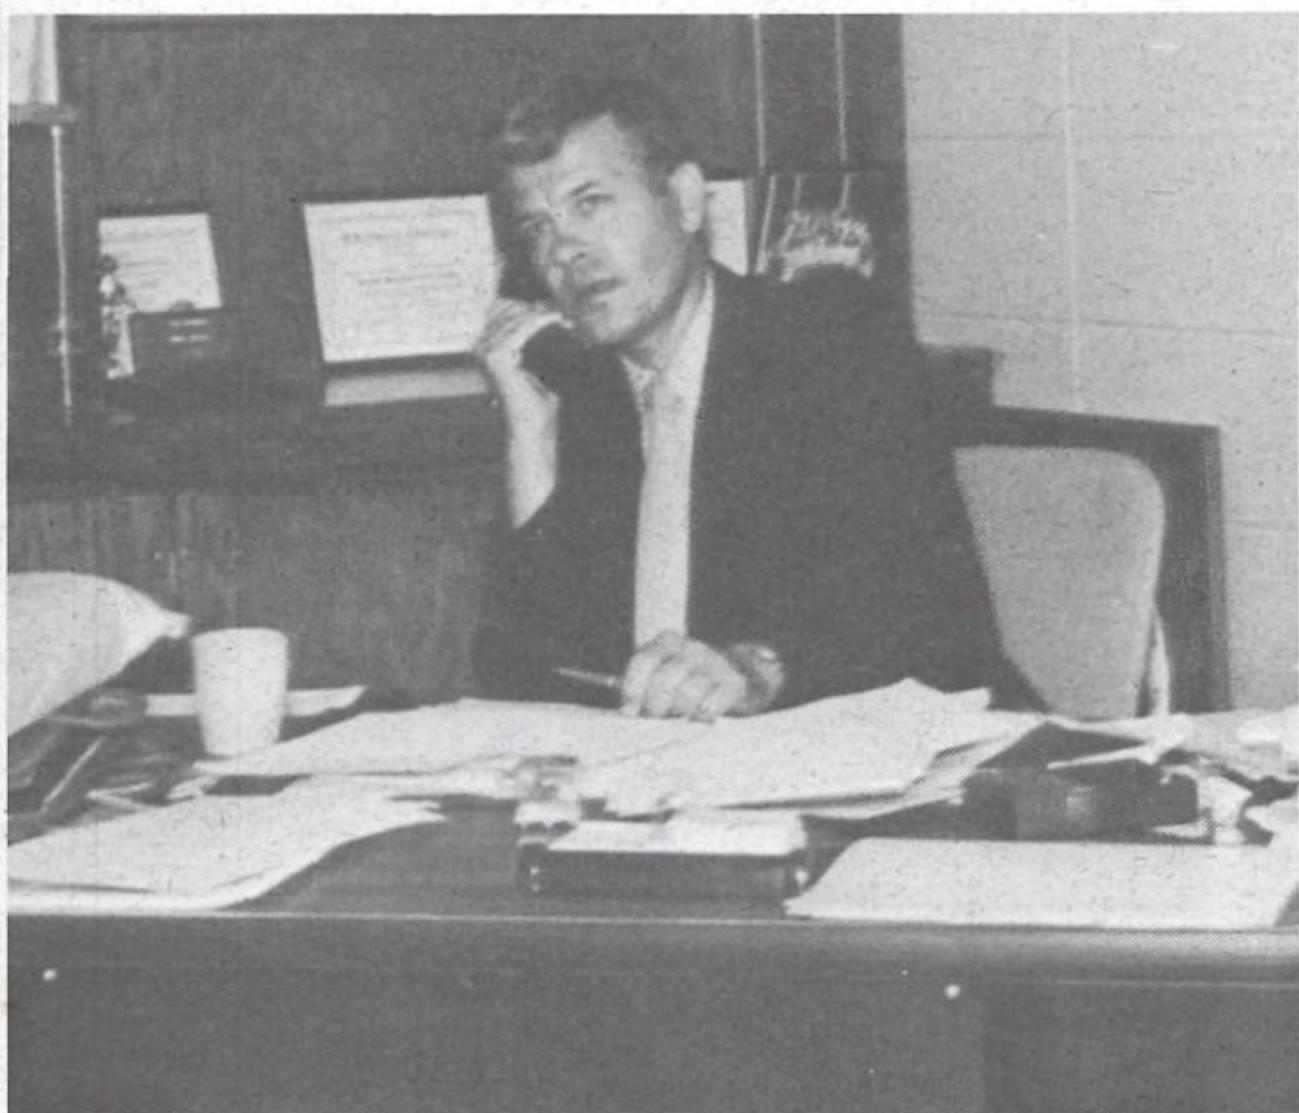

They set up and enforce the policies of the laboratory school so as to offer Greenwood students a well-rounded educational program and promote worthy ideals of citizenship and high academic standards.

An important part of Greenwood is the good relationship between faculty and students. Working together through classes, conferences, and extra-curricular activities, they united their efforts to achieve the best possible education for all.

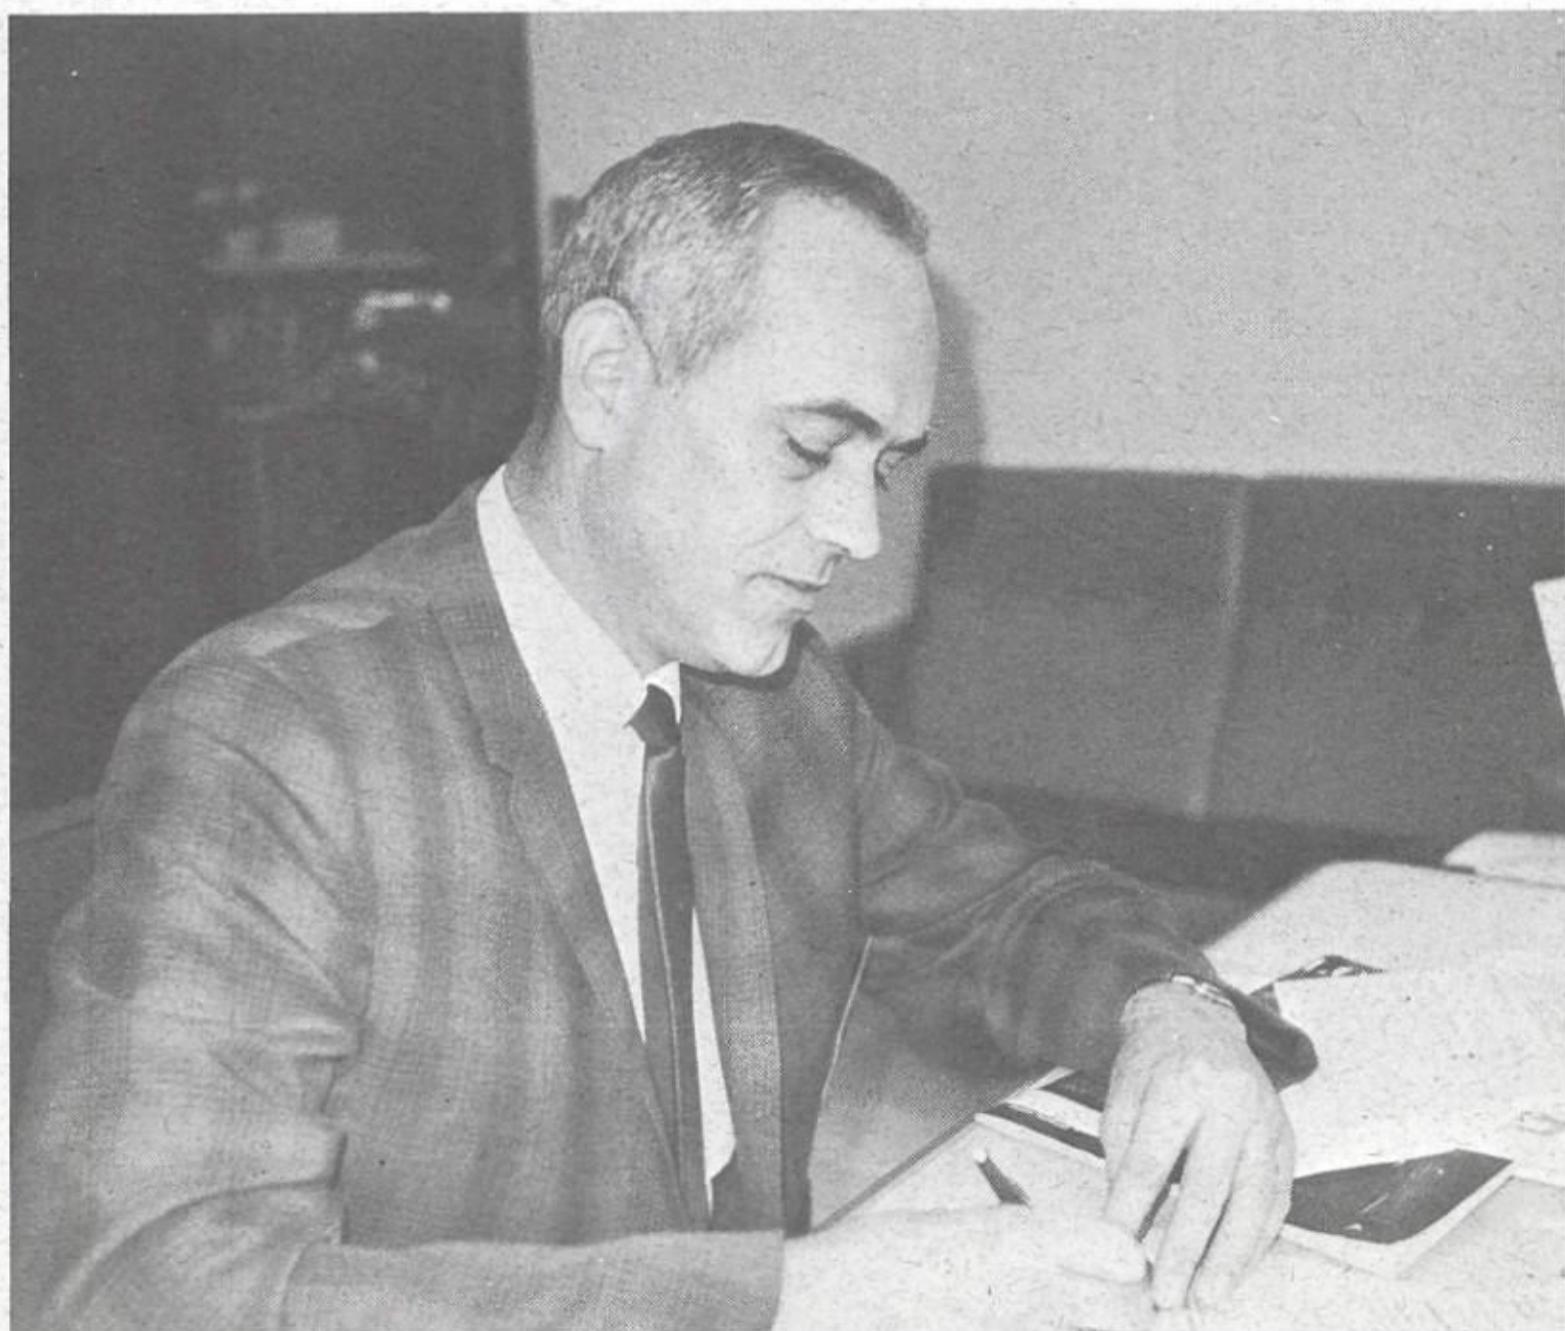

RIGHT: Patrick O. Copley is Dean of the Division of Education and Psychology. He received his Ed.D. from Arizona State University. ABOVE: Mr. Ralph G. Hawkins is the Director of Educational Media and Instructor of Teacher Education. He received his M.S. in education at Kansas State College in 1967 and is presently in control of the T. V. controls. UPPER RIGHT: Greenwood's secretaries, Naomi Kinslow and Sharon Anson are busily working in the central office.

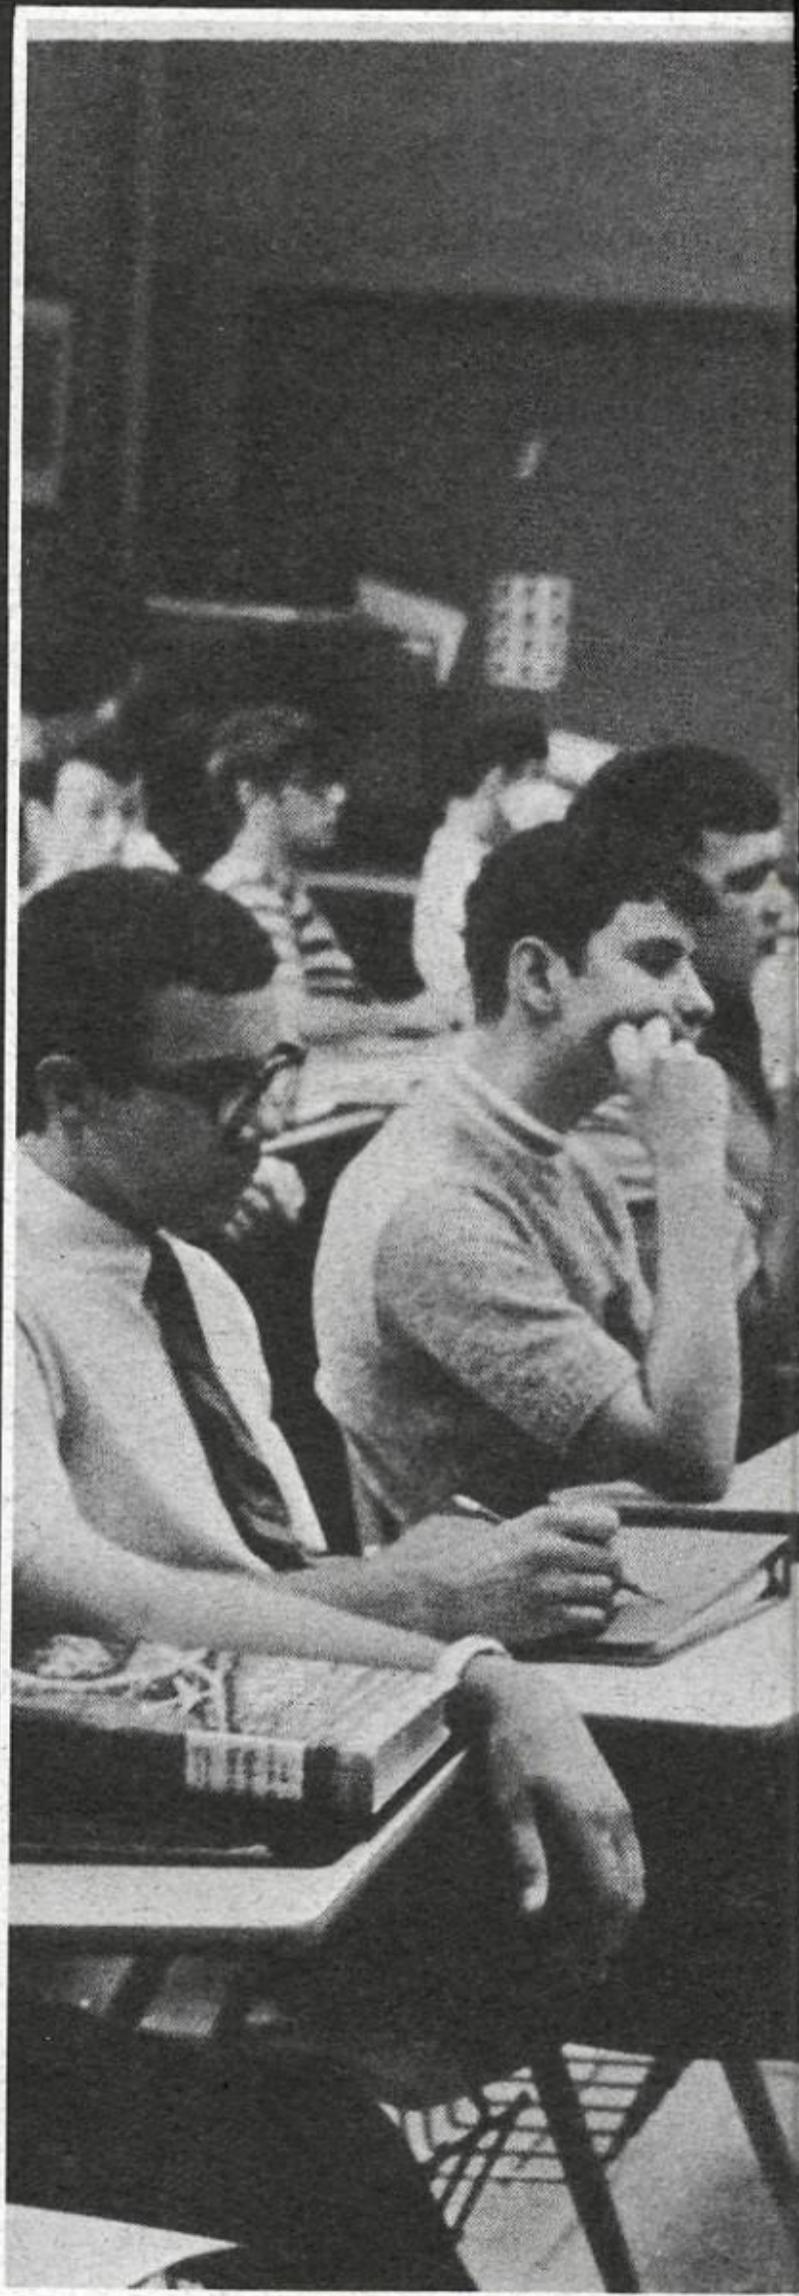

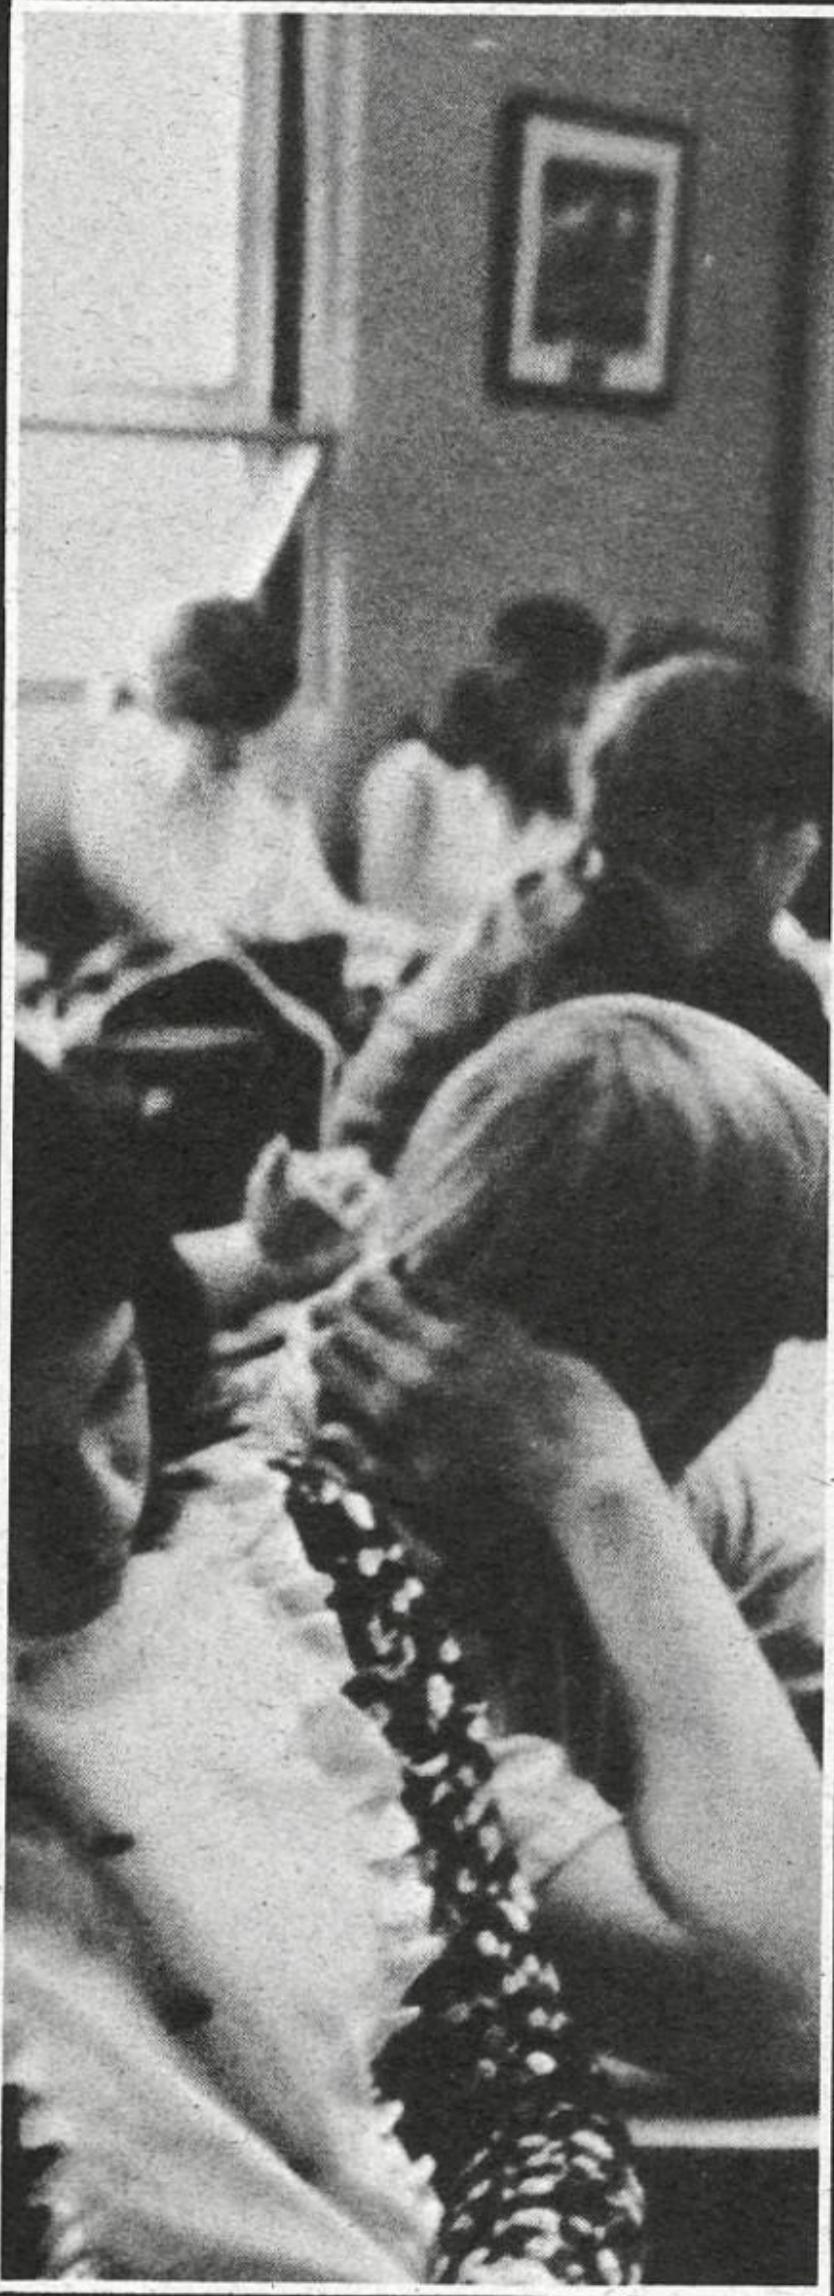

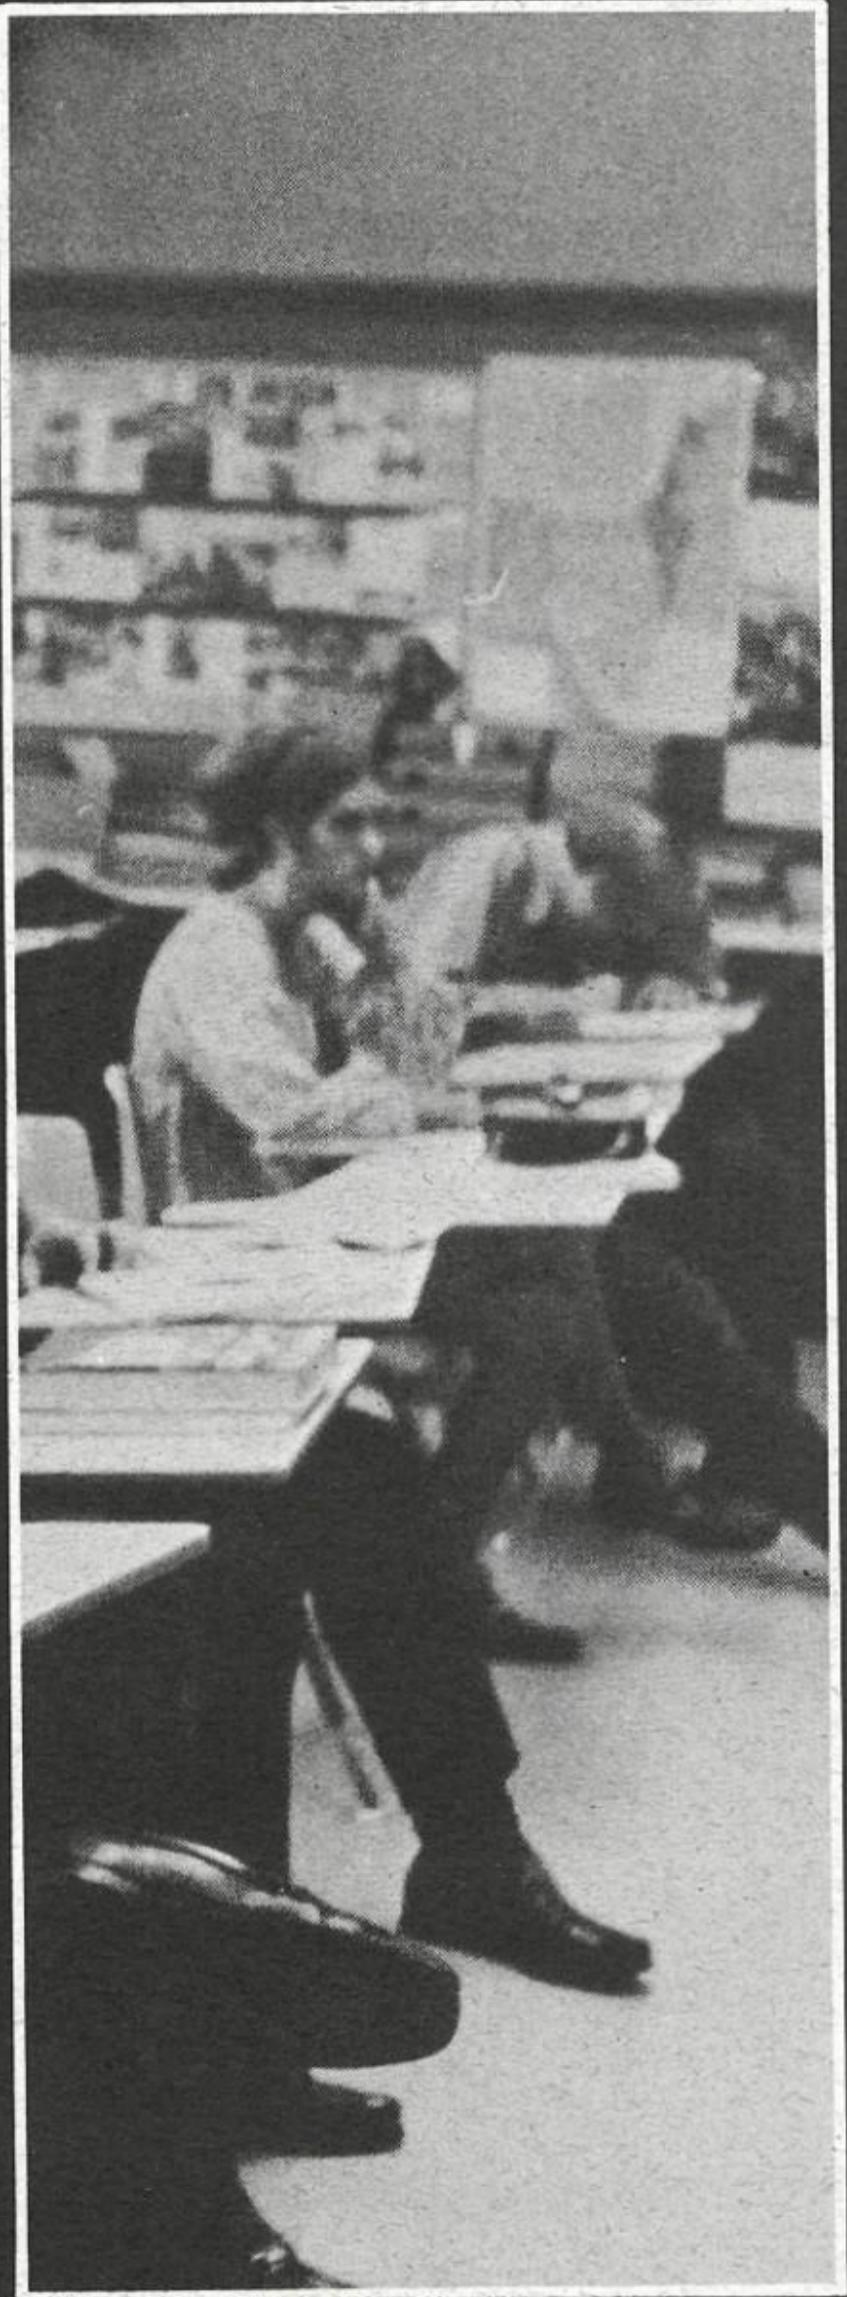

Administration

LEFT: Taking care of Activity funds this year is Mr. L. Bruce Fritz. He received his M.S.Ed. from Northern State College and is currently serving as Instructor and Assistant Director of the Laboratory School. BELOW: James F. Jester, Head of the Laboratory School Department and a teacher of Ninth Grade Block, received his Ed.D. from the University of Kansas in Lawrence, Kansas.

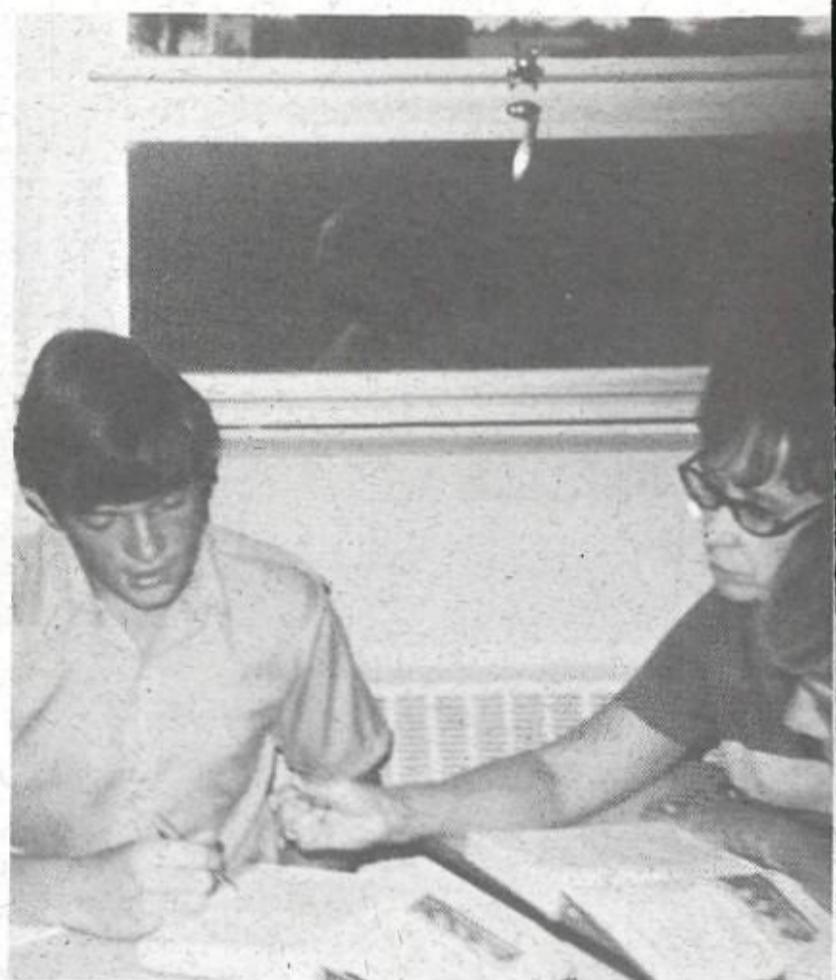

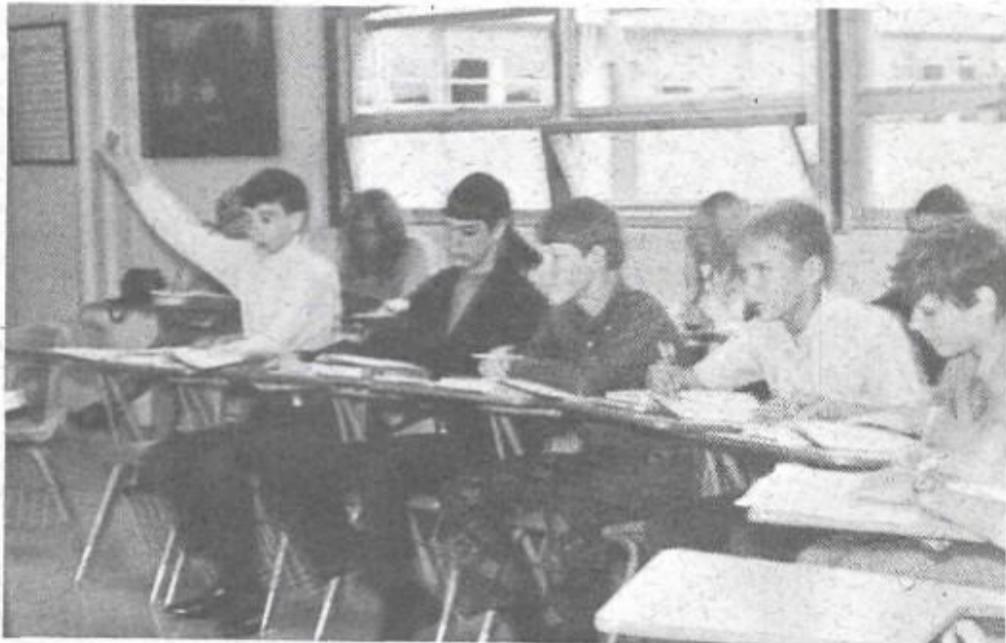

CURRICULUM

Each soul is content in the pursuit of individual goals.

English — Latin

ABOVE: This class is holding an interesting discussion over their literature reading. (Fred Groce, Kurt H'Doubler). BELOW: Mrs. Mildred B. Rice received her BS from S.M.S. She teaches Junior High English as well as Latin I and II. She is the sponsor of the Latin Club.

English — Speech

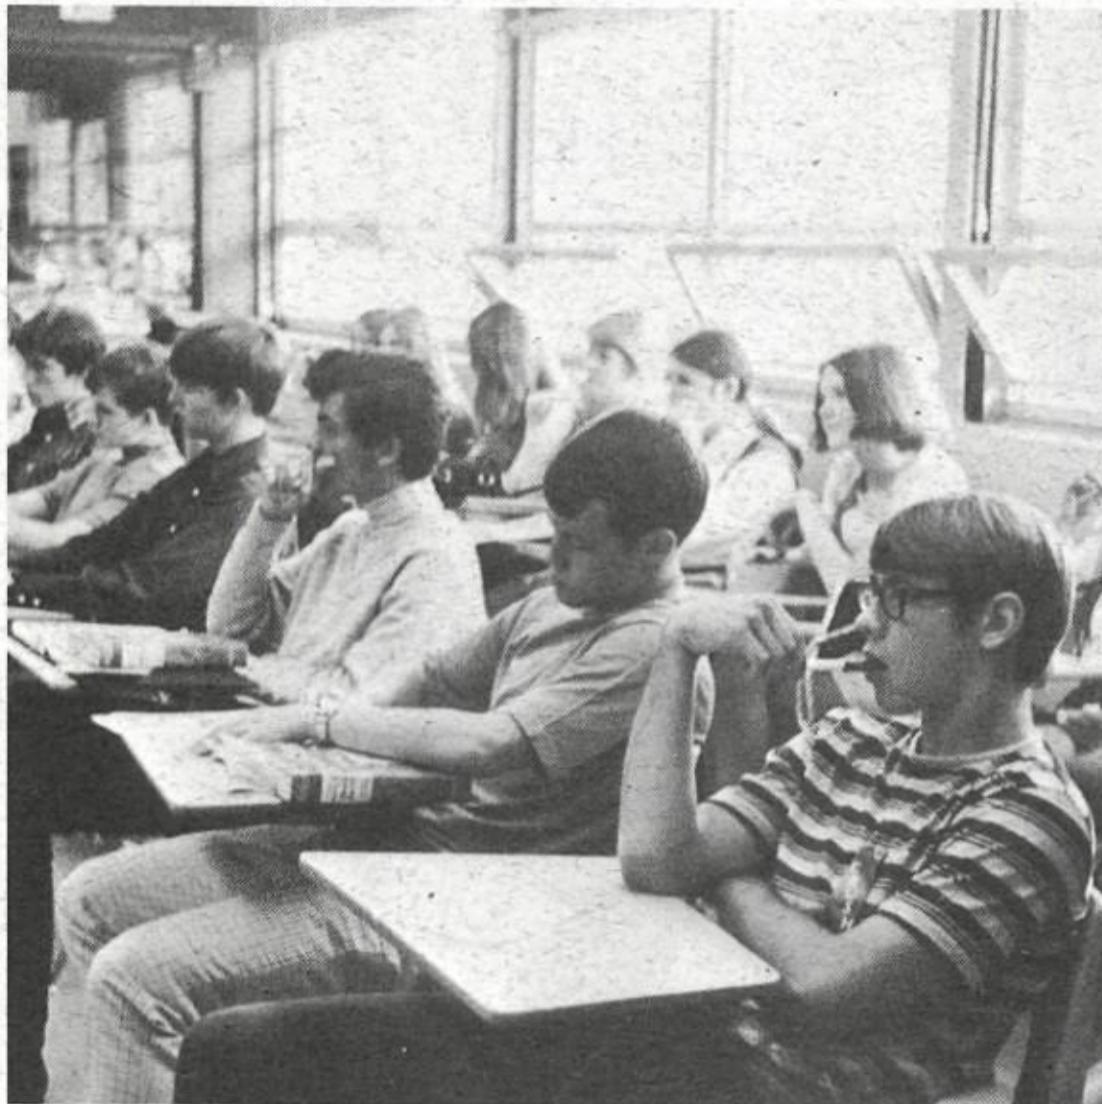

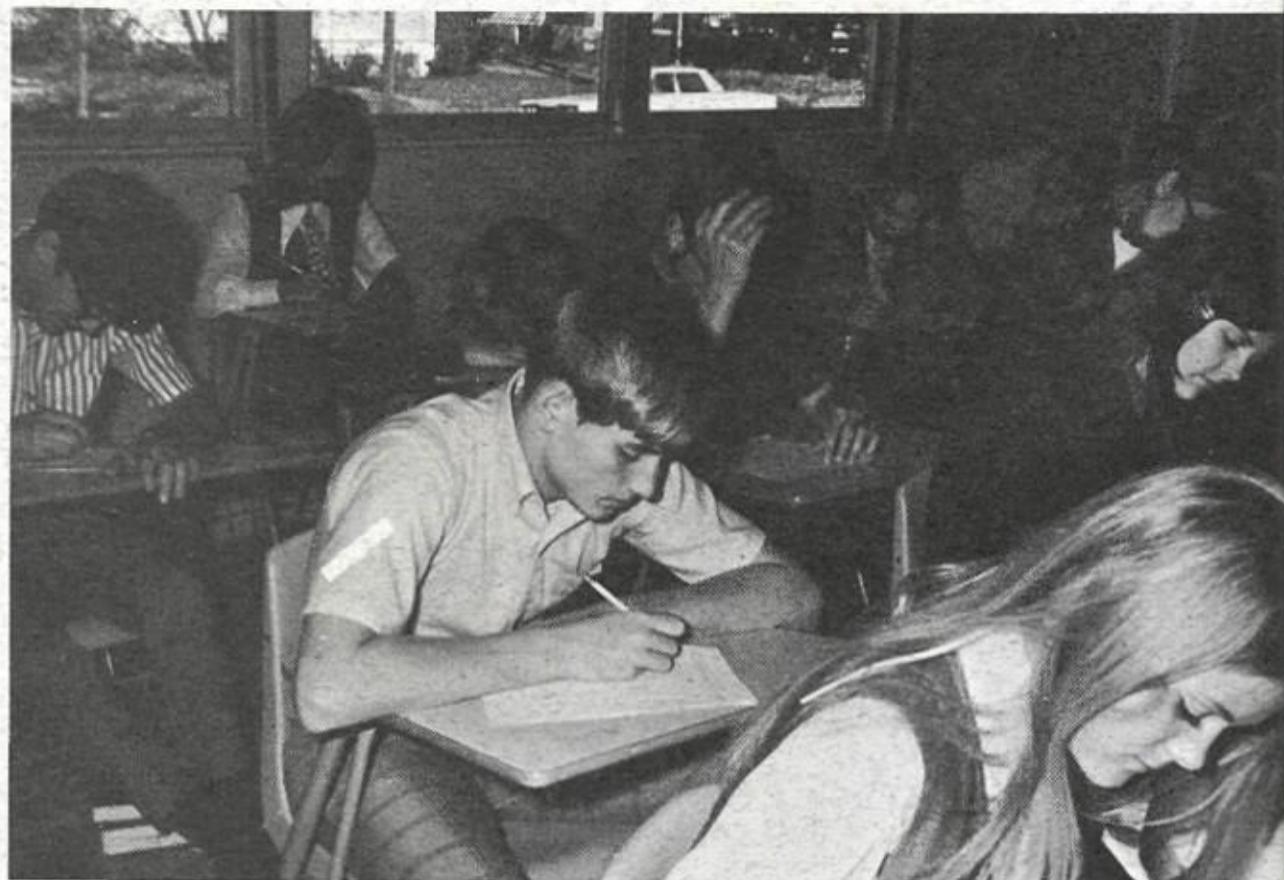

ABOVE: Fundamentals of speech and good dramatization are the basic objects of learning in the Speech class. (Rick Jester, Bob McDowell, Debby Norris).
RIGHT: Charles Baird received his M.S. from the University of Arkansas and supervises high school English and Speech. He is the sponsor of the Cub Standard and the speech squad. BELOW: These Juniors are listening very closely to one of the many interesting discussions held in the Junior English class. (Lynn Thomas, Nancy Petiford, Eric Ege, Vicki Elsey).

Before perfecting the world, we must first perfect ourselves. With the help of our English program provided at Greenwood, we can become skilled in the language arts. English was required for grades seven through eleven. It emphasized the improvement of vocabulary, speed and comprehensive reading, and oral and written communication. English twelve, an elective, emphasized the study of literature. Speech offered fundamentals of communication and dramatics. Latin included Roman civilization, Greek myths, and the study of derivatives which helped broaden our horizons.

History

RIGHT: Dr. Grace Gardner, supervisor of History and student council sponsor, received her Ed.D. from the University of Missouri. She is active in A.F.S. and a booster for spirit at G.H.S. When asked how she feels about Greenwood and history, she replied, "Greenwood makes history!" ABOVE: World History challenges sophomores as they are tested on feudalism, chivalry and Medieval times. (Bob Kollmeier, Andrea Knabb).

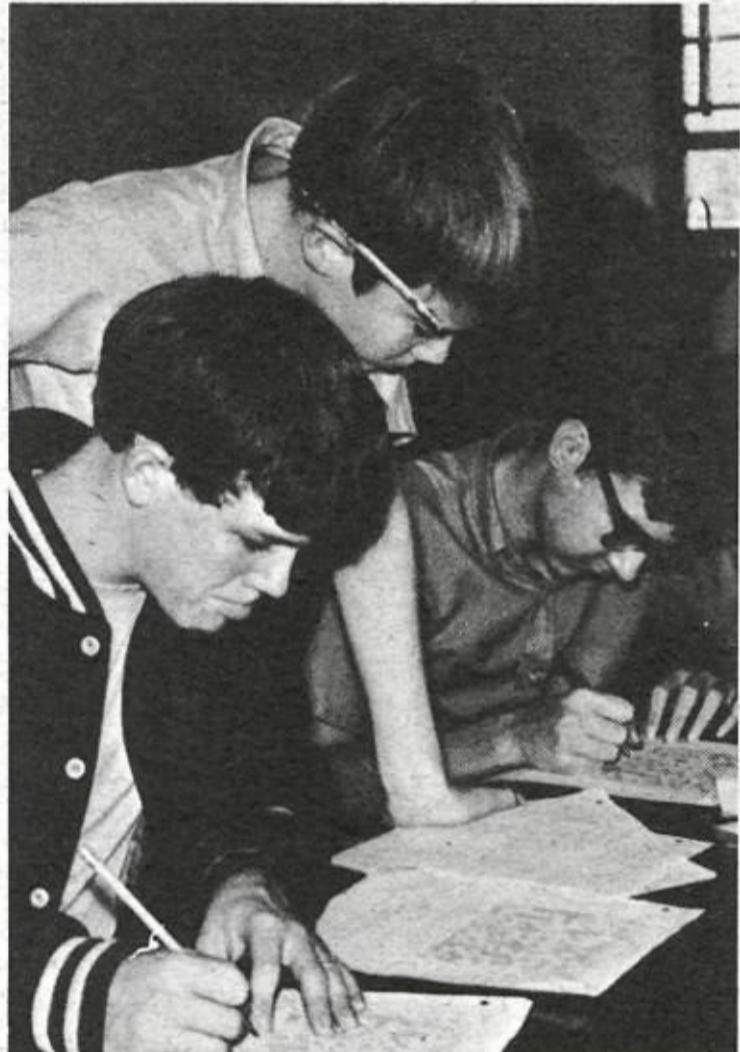

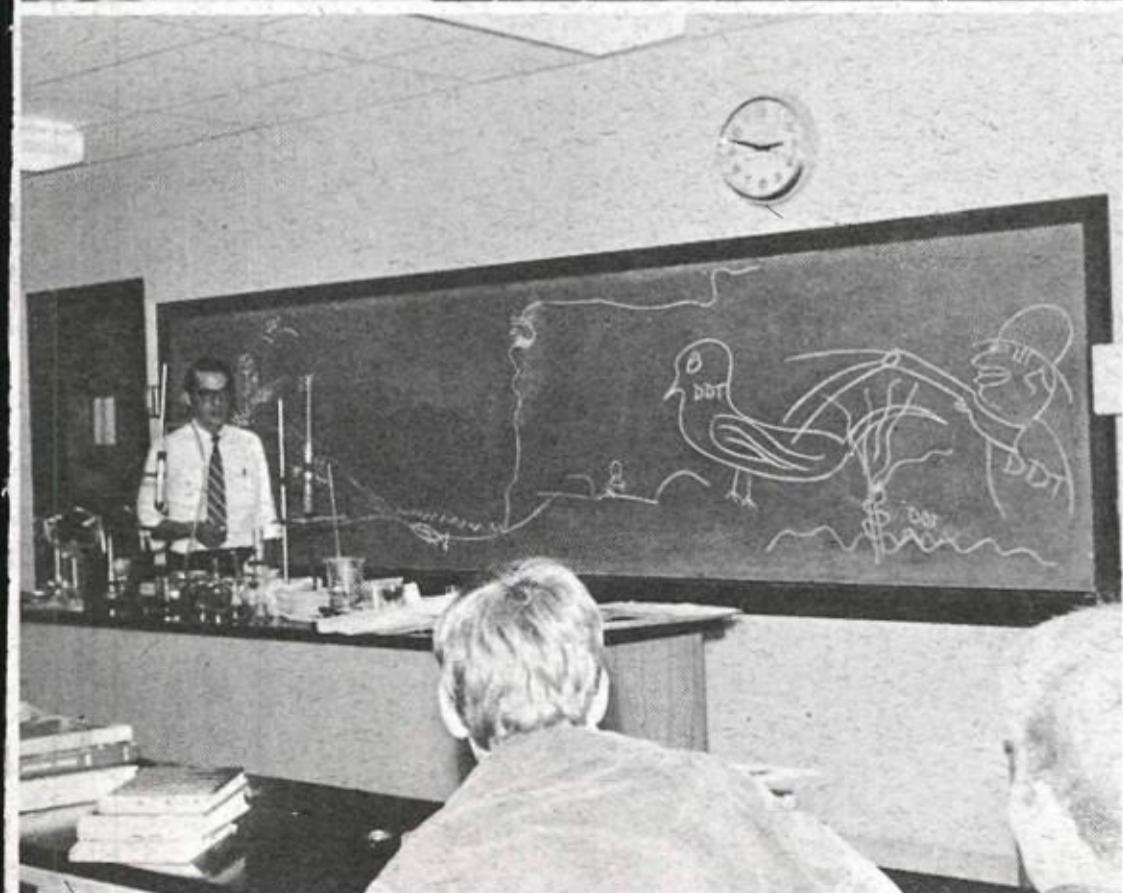

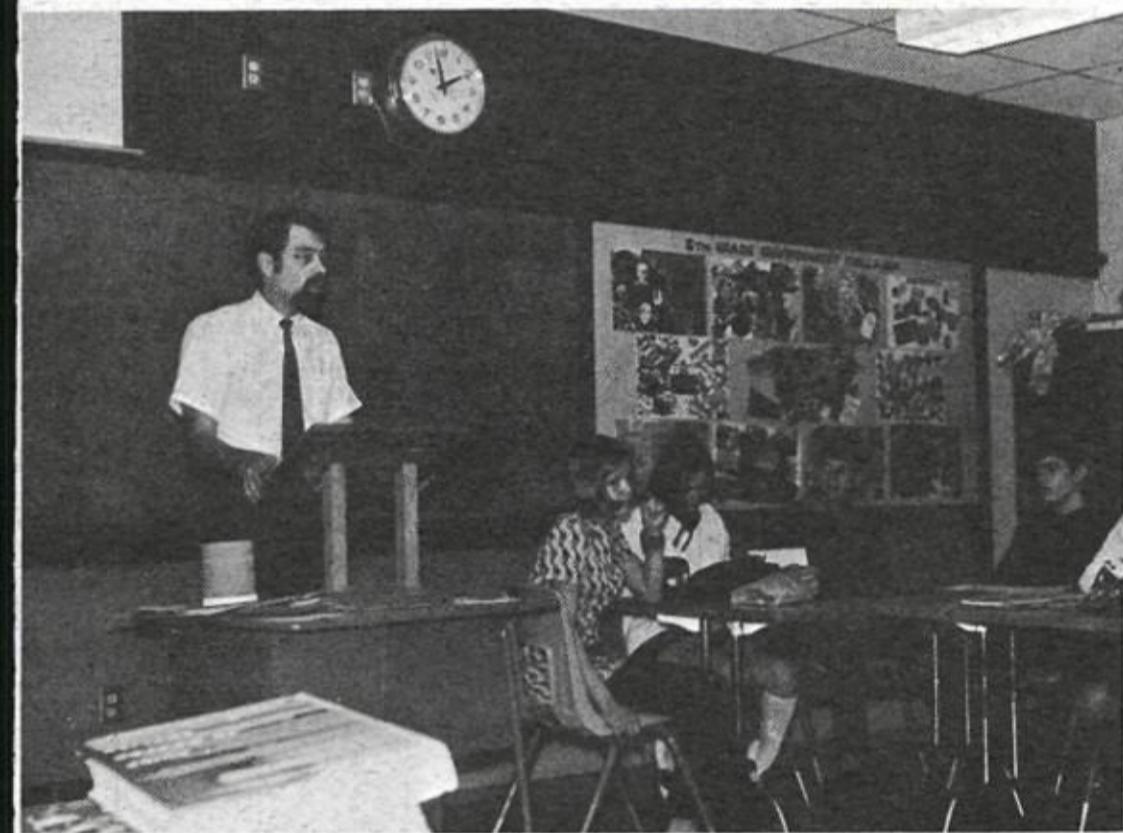

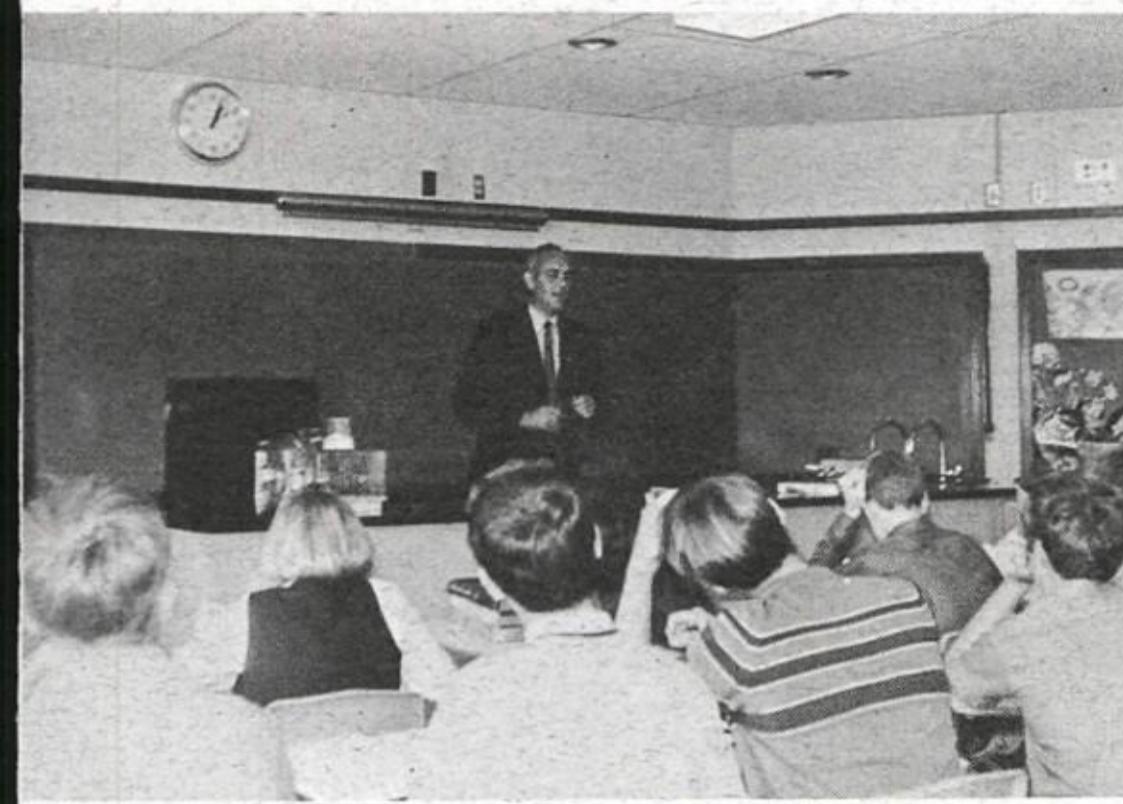

The Junior Class listens attentively to an interesting American History lesson. (Eric Shryer, Bryan Luna, Mike el Fakharani, Tom Gilmore).

The knowledge of the past enables us to better understand the present and to meet the needs of the future. Under the guidance of Dr. Grace Gardner and Dr. James Jester, students explored new paths this year in such courses as Junior High History, Civics, American or World History, and American Problems. Guided by worthwhile activities and classroom discussions, the students of the present will be better suited to meet the needs of the future through the knowledge of the past.

Freshman Block

The Freshman Class experimented with a new type of class this year, called the "Ninth Grade Block." The block was made up of four classes over a two-hour period. The class stayed in one room, where the teachers came to them offering courses in English, History, Art and Science. The main purpose of the block was to promote discipline and communications between the four subjects. The Freshman Block proved to be an interesting as well as worthwhile experiment for all those involved in this new and exciting innovation for the lab school.

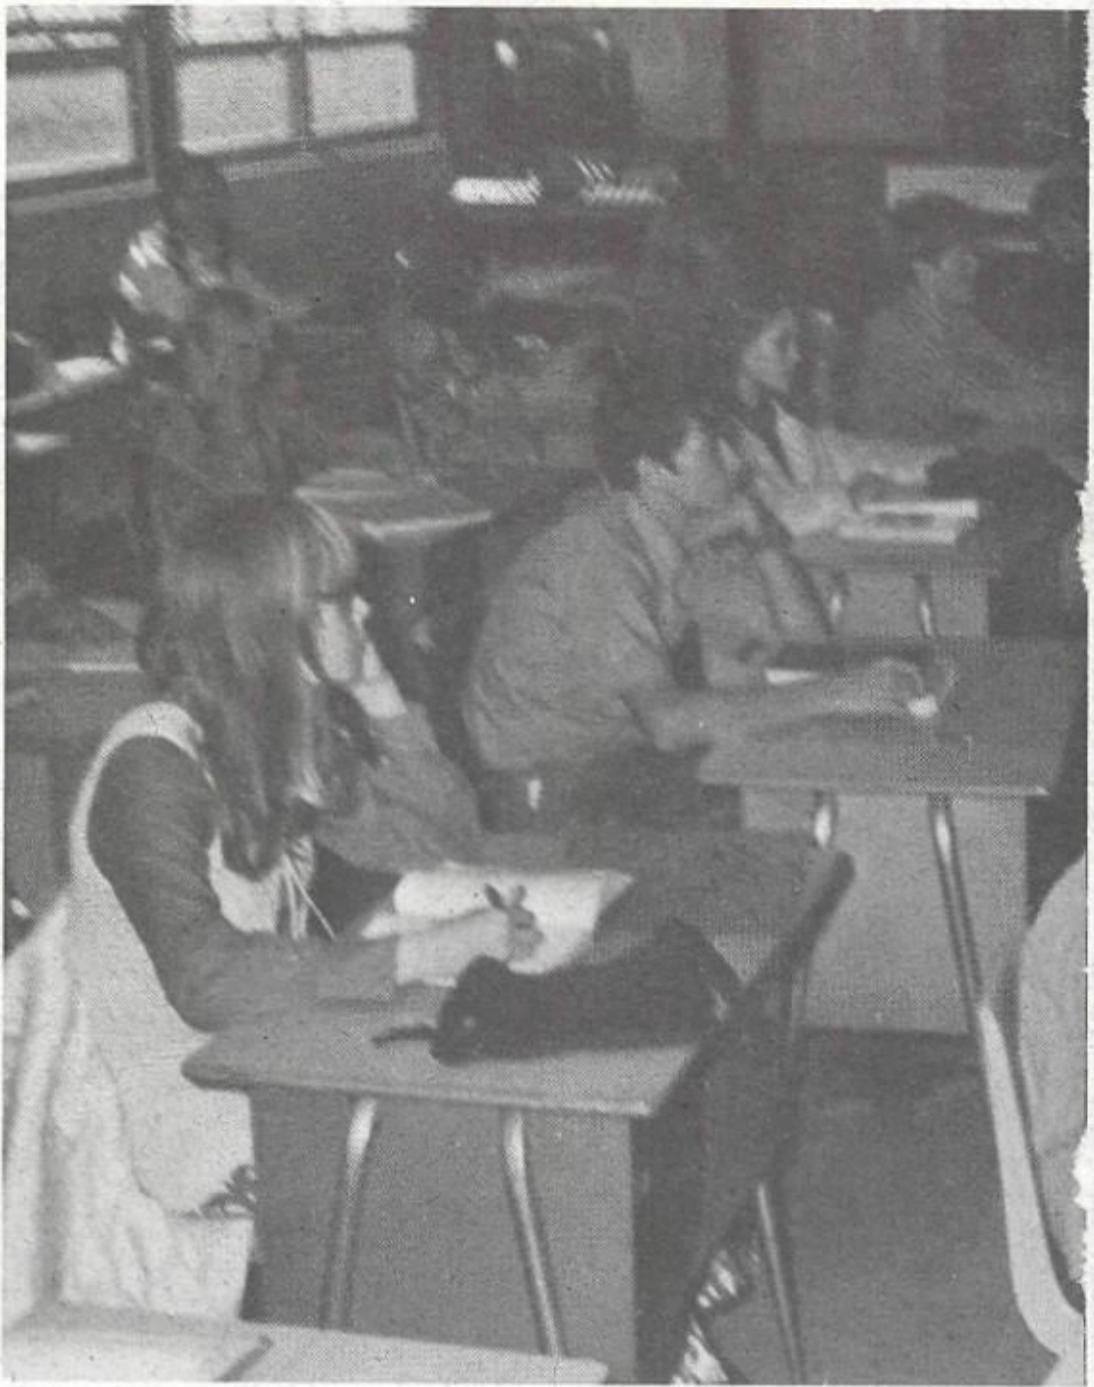

LEFT: Dr. Jester instructs in English, where the importance of listening is stressed. Mr. Kinsey wants his class to express themselves creatively as they explore the arts. Freshman are introduced to science as Mr. McLaren explains the basic ideas. ABOVE: Students use combined concepts to prepare a project. (John Boyts, Kurt H'Doubler, Jim Anderson).

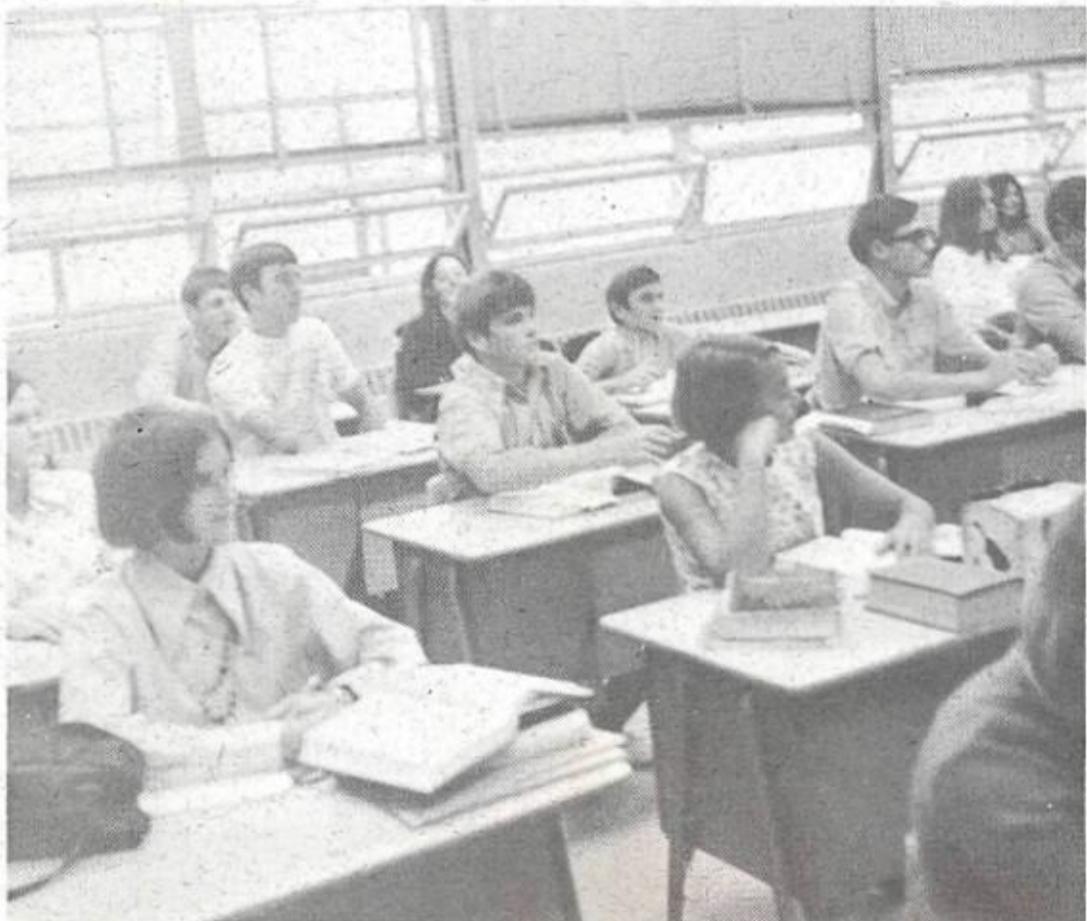

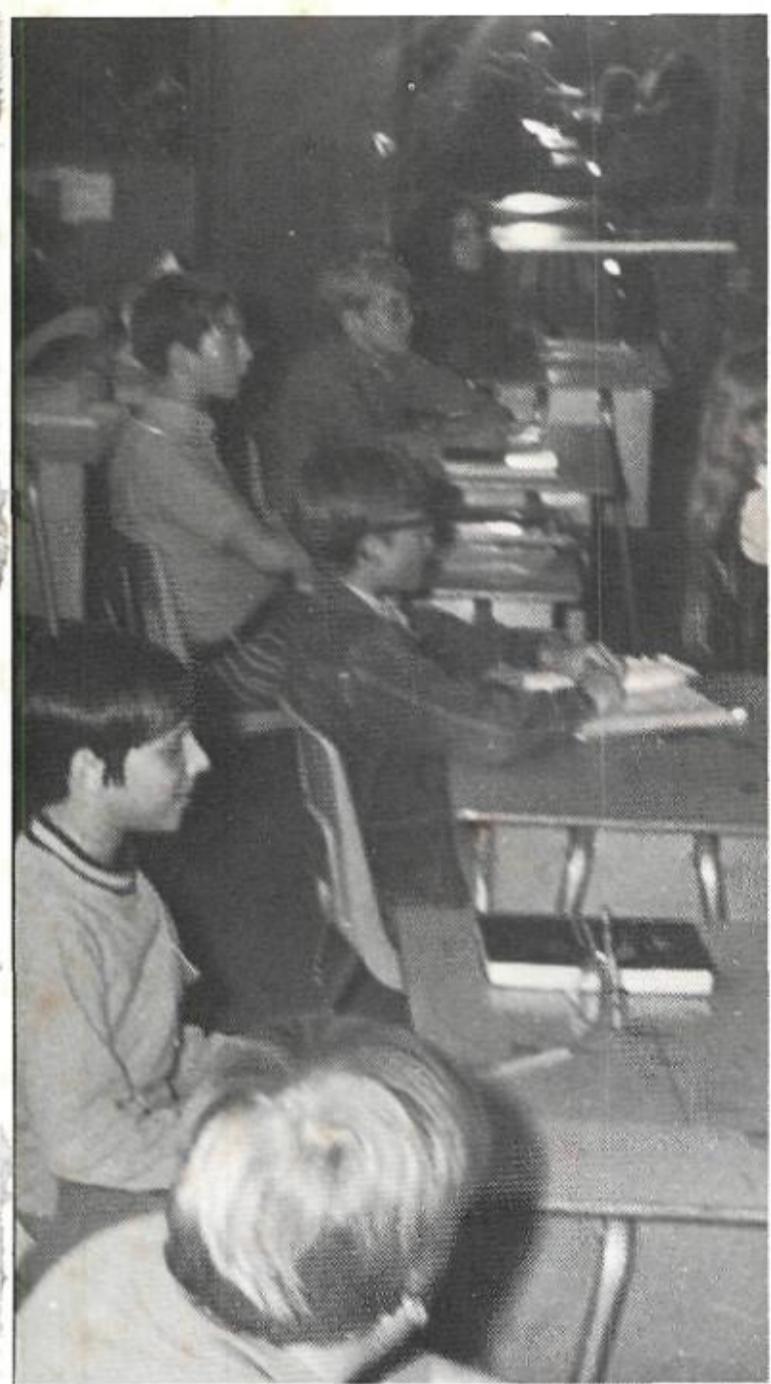

Math instructor, Richard Moore, received his MA from Drury College. He sponsors the Sophomore Class and has the privilege of advising the Blue and Gold Tournament program again this year.

The full understanding of theorems, postulates, and such basic assumptions as axioms, are important in the field of mathematics. The Greenwood program is under the direction of Mr. Richard Moore and Dr. Jack Bush. Math students, due to our excellent curriculum, are well prepared for college.

Mathematics

ABOVE: Dr. Bush, who received his Ed.D. from the University of Arkansas, is Senior Class Sponsor.
RIGHT: Algebra II sends three Juniors back to the drawing board. (Bryan Luna, Mary Ann Henley, Gary Herrick).

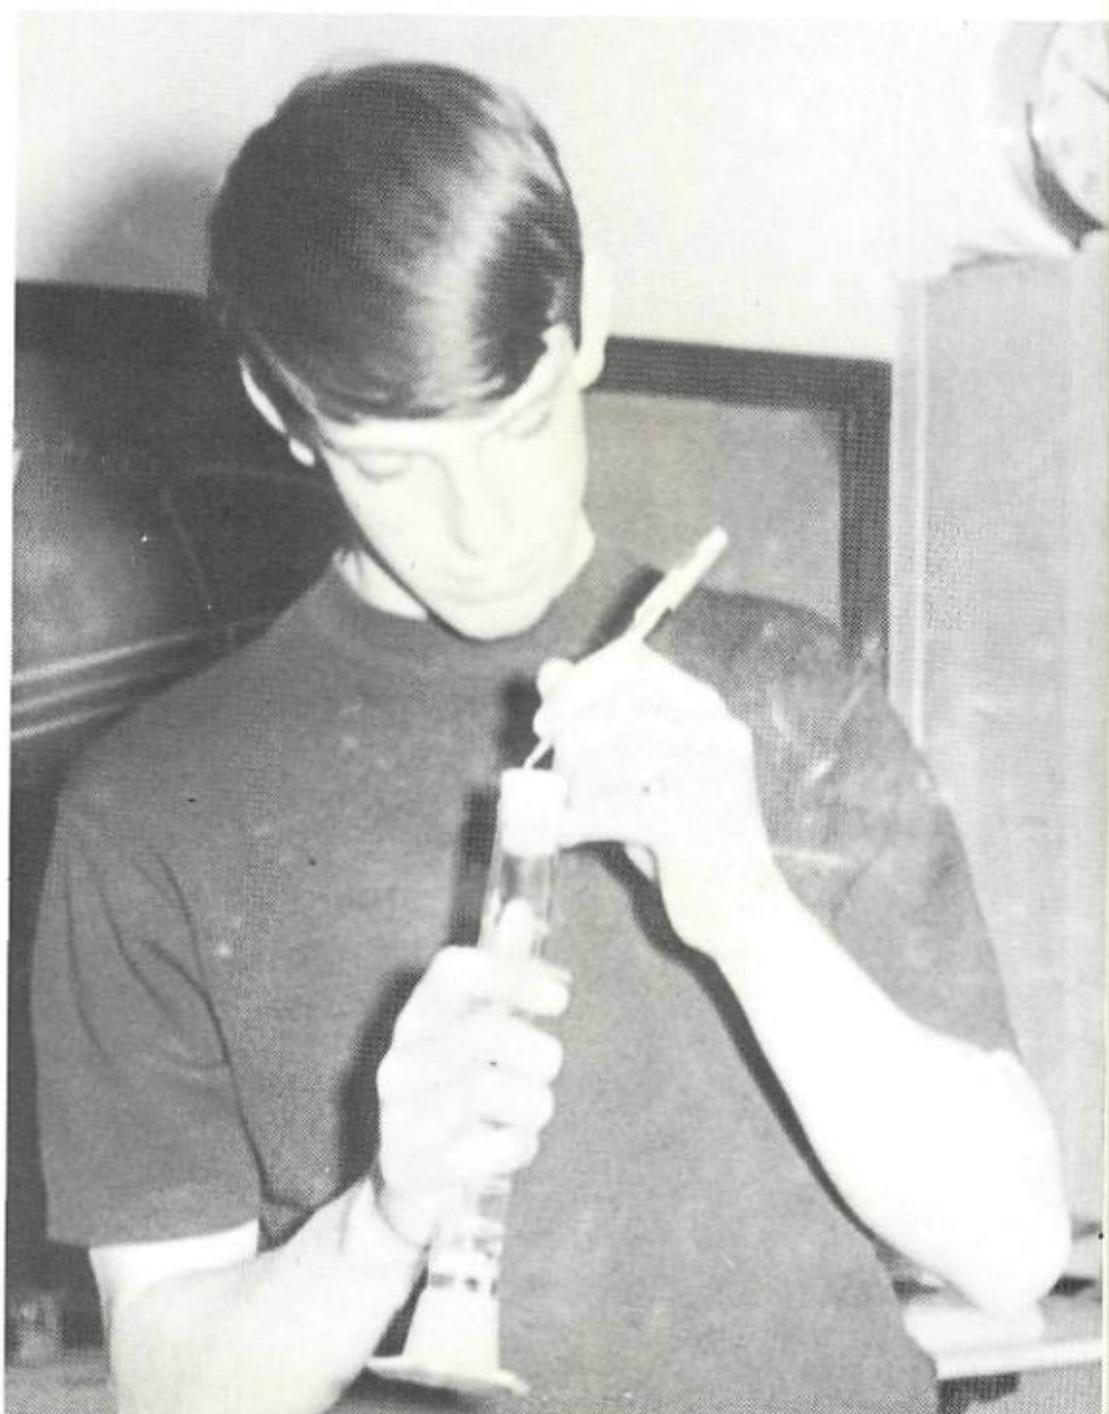

Within our world of today, scientific processes are continually taking place. Science students performed experiments and discovered many of them through the courses available. The Science department offered a variety of courses including seventh grade science, eighth grade science, functional science, biology, chemistry and physics. Science education was approached in a new manner this year with the combination of the chemistry and physics classes. Students who took advantage of these opportunities found science to be a profitable and enjoyable experience.

Science

Business Typing Bookkeeping

Challenges of the business world were met by this year's business students through hard work, determination, and long hours of industrious practice.

Beginning typewriting was offered to those who wished to learn basic typewriting skills. Advanced typewriting was given for those who wished to further their skills and their knowledge in business procedures. Bookkeeping was also offered to those desiring to learn the fundamentals of business.

Small classes enable the students to receive more individual help in the beginning typing courses. (Becky Sullivan, Sharon Savage).

Consumer Economics, a new class offered at Greenwood this year, is a highly relevant class. It is taught by Mr. Bruce Fritz. The major goal of the class is to prepare students to cooperate intelligently and efficiently as a member of society and to understand the free enterprise system. These goals were achieved through the study of price surveys, and students conducting classes during the second semester. As a new class it was very successful and enjoyable.

Consumer Economics

Mr. Fritz finds that using visual aids, such as the overhead projector in class, helps in teaching Consumer Economics.

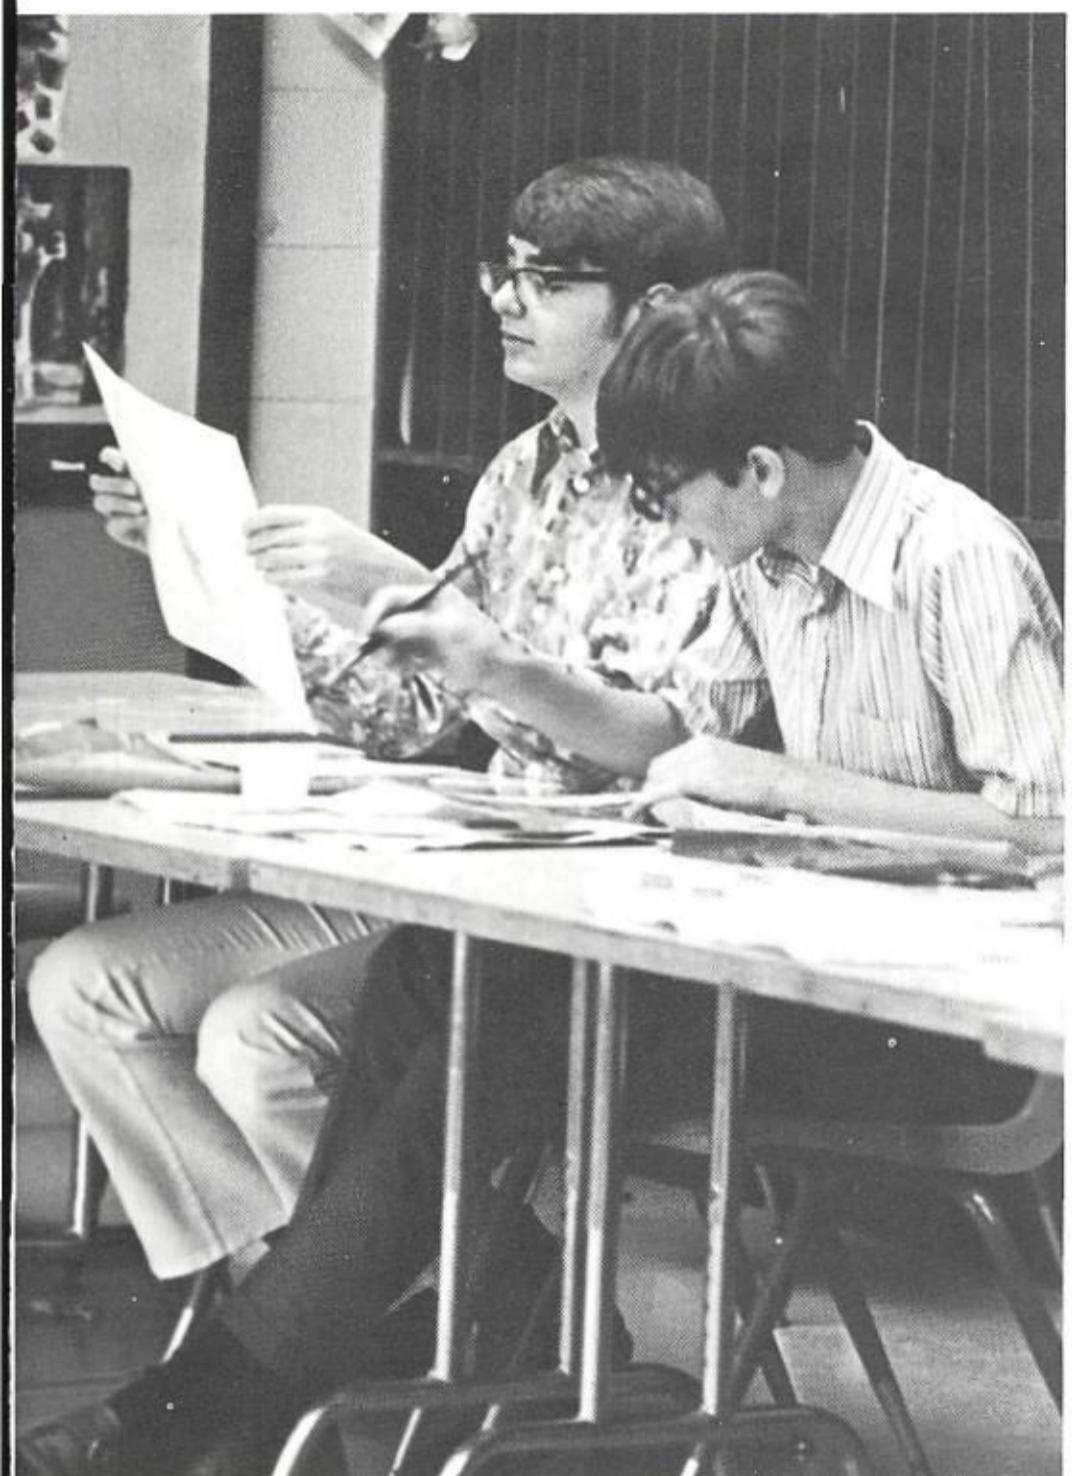

RIGHT: Students are able to express themselves in many different types of media in the High School Art program. (Julie H'Doubler, Sarah H'Doubler). MIDDLE: Tom Kinsey who received his M.Ed. from the University of Missouri, supervises high school Art and is sponsor of the annual. BOTTOM: Art provides a means for expressing oneself through creativity in sculpture. (Dave Evans).

Art appreciation, painting, sculpture, and lettering, were only a few of the areas explored by the Greenwood Art classes this year. Allied Arts, a course combining the fine arts, was required for seventh graders. Eighth graders were also required to take Art. The freshmen took Art, as combined with other classes in the Ninth Grade Block. Other grades held Art as an elective.

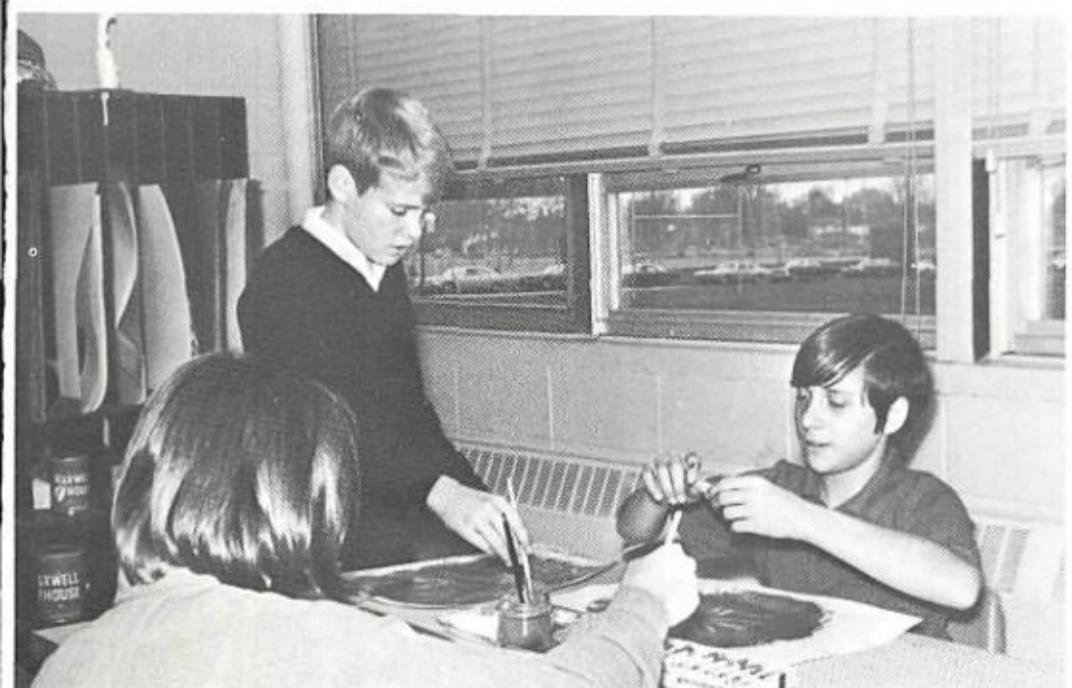

Art

Home Economics Industrial Arts

Mrs. Griffith, Supervisor of Home Economics, received her BS at Kansas State University and her MS from Iowa State.

ABOVE: Learning drafting in Industrial Education is a new experience for Seventh Grade boys. (Mike Gilmore, Bo Calbert).

The students in the Home Economics Classes gained valuable knowledge useful for future homemakers or home economists. Basic skills in cooking, sewing, budgeting, and home decoration were taught by Mrs. Griffith.

Industrial Arts gave students a chance to express themselves and also be creative with their hands. Metalwork, woodwork, leather-craft, and other skills were taught by Mr. Parke. Developing their skills and usage of the different tools helped them to reach their goals.

Physical Education

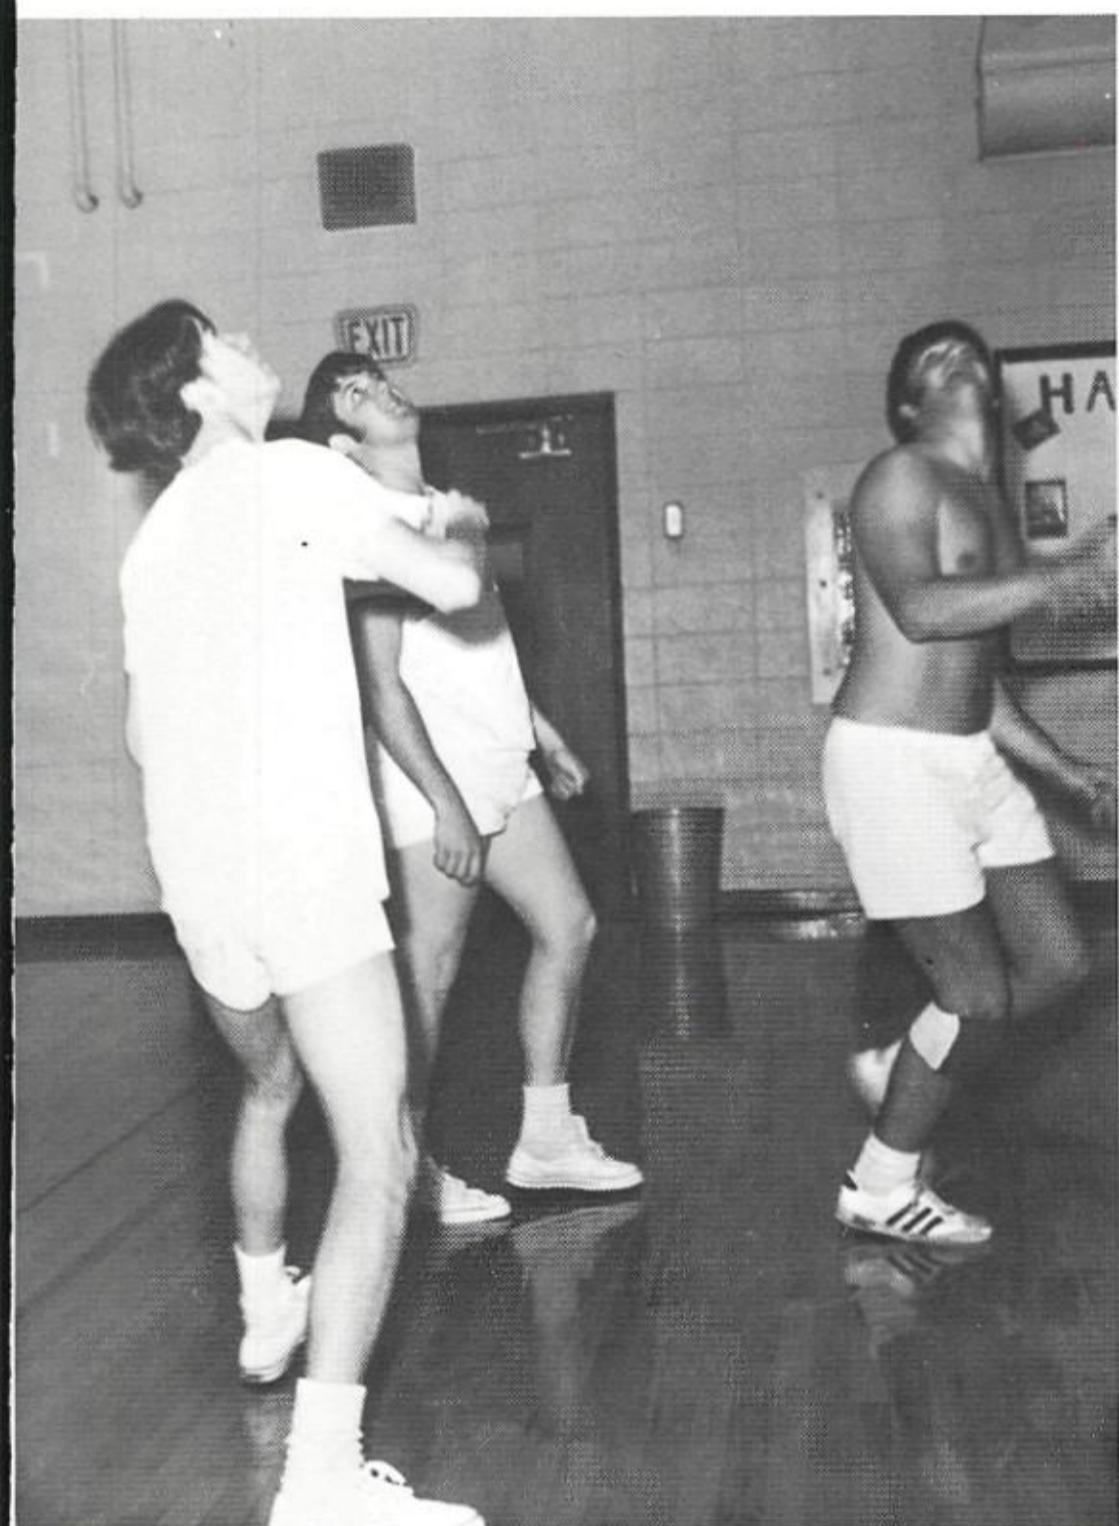

ABOVE: The standing broad jump is one of the tests taken each year in girls P.E. One of the few tests that is enjoyed, it is a good way to measure improvement in physical fitness. (Charrie Roberts).

This year students participated in a profitable and enjoyable physical education program. Sports played an important part in all classes along with a unit of bowling for girls and circuit training for boys. The fitness test was given as a comparison of growth and improvement throughout the year. Sportsmanship and participation were stressed to develop a program for physically fit and healthy citizens.

ABOVE: Basketball and track are coached by P.E. supervisor, Larry Atwood. He received his MA from Drury College. (Rick McQueary).

Library

ABOVE: A student finds the library to be a good place to find reading material for enjoyment. (Stan Payne). LEFT: The Greenwood Library is an excellent place for study during the day because of its quiet atmosphere. (Julie H'Doubler). BELOW: Jean Westmoreland, librarian, received her MA on Library Science from the University of Illinois.

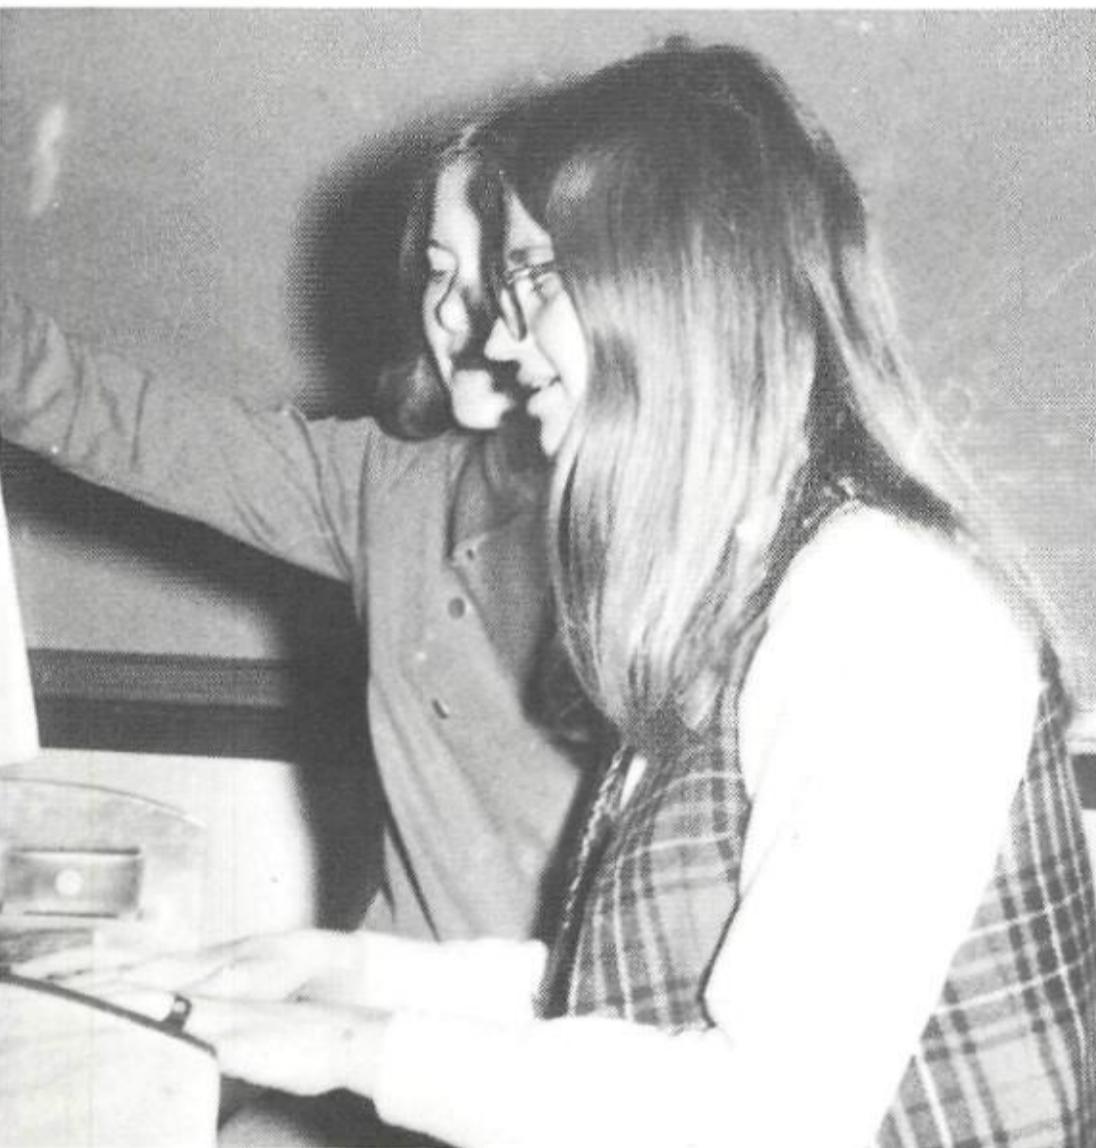

The Greenwood Library is arranged to accommodate the every need or want of a high school or elementary student. Mrs. Westmoreland has helped to make possible the utmost facilities for an outstanding reading adventure, research, or studying assignments. The atmosphere was changed to create a quieter place to concentrate with the additions of a new carpet and an organization of books and shelves.

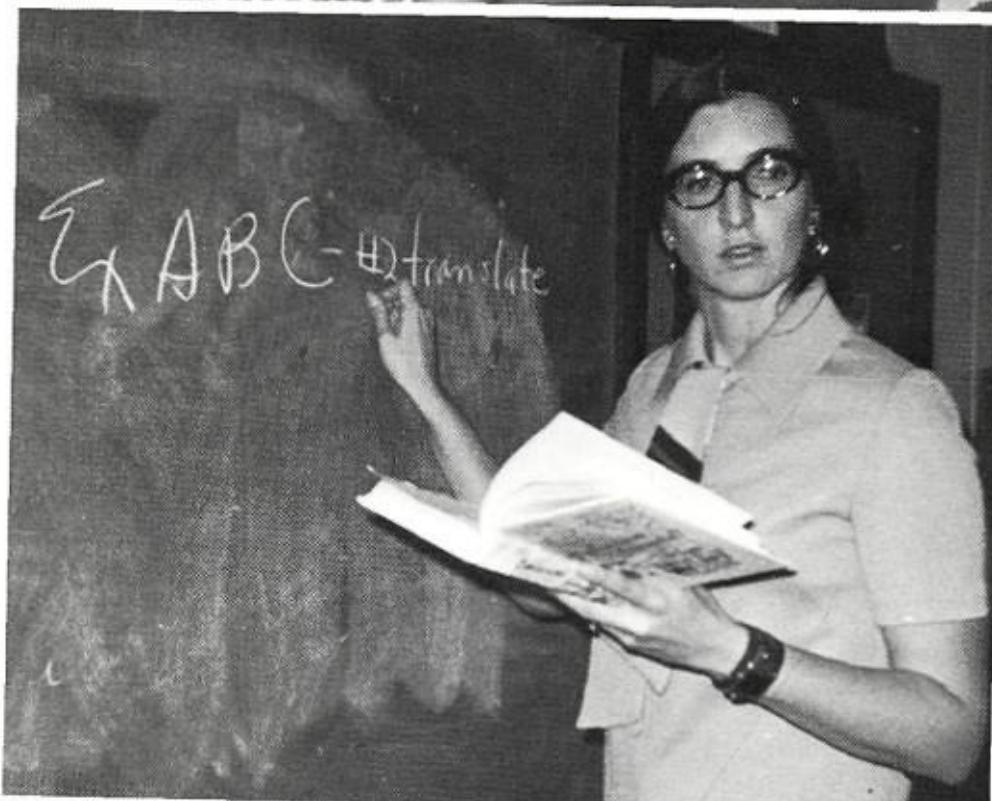

Music

The Greenwood Music department shows variety through its many activities. This program allows students to participate in various areas of music. A Christmas program was presented by the Chorus, composed of senior high students. Song Spinners and the Double Mixed Quartet were chosen from the Chorus. Rounding out this program is the Allied Arts class, the small instrumental ensembles formed in place of the band, and the hand bell choir. Through these many programs, GHS students found musical enjoyment and appreciation.

Foreign Languages

Spanish and French classes have attracted many students at Greenwood this year.

This year's language program not only strengthened students in correct usage of the languages spoken but also acquainted them with the people themselves. This was accomplished through films, outside reading, lectures, and a language laboratory.

Students participating in the language program unanimously agreed that their hard study and work throughout the year was well worth the effort.

Scheduling classes, advising students on their problems, and administering tests were the chief functions of Greenwood's counselor.

An accurate record was kept of each student attending GHS. The record file contains a student's grades, the activities in which he is involved and the results of all his tests. This enables the counselor to form a picture of the student which helps him counsel with the students more wisely.

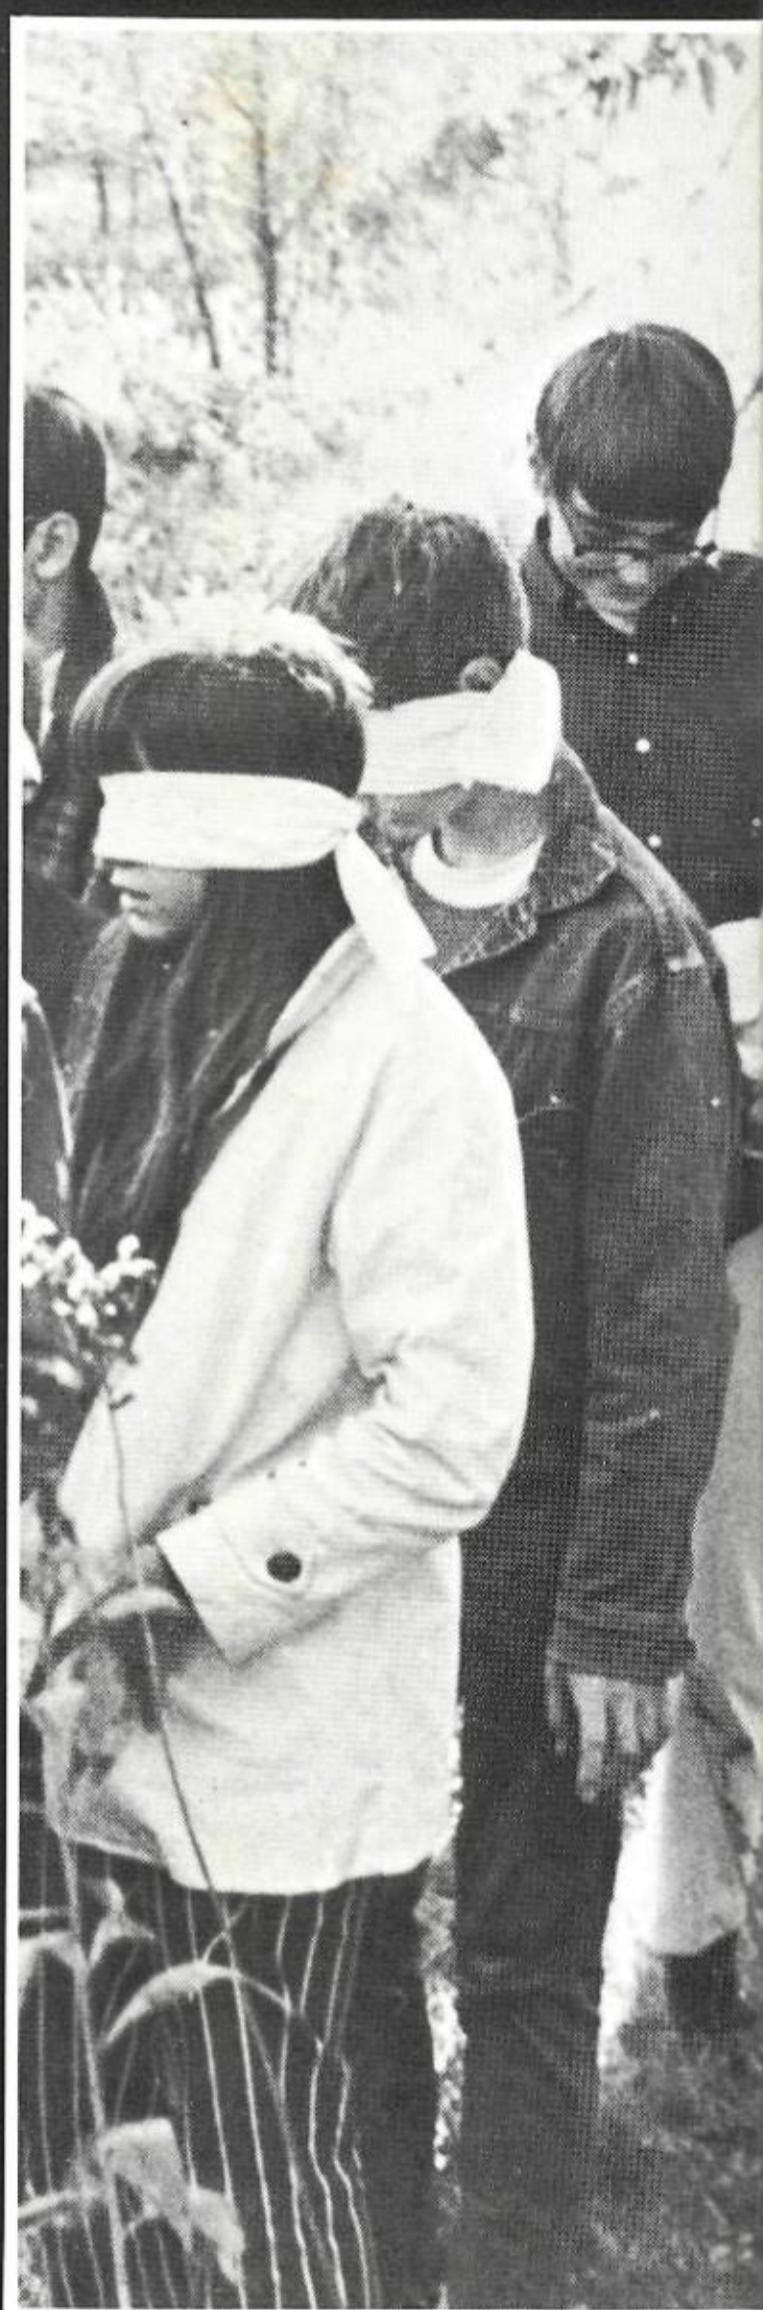

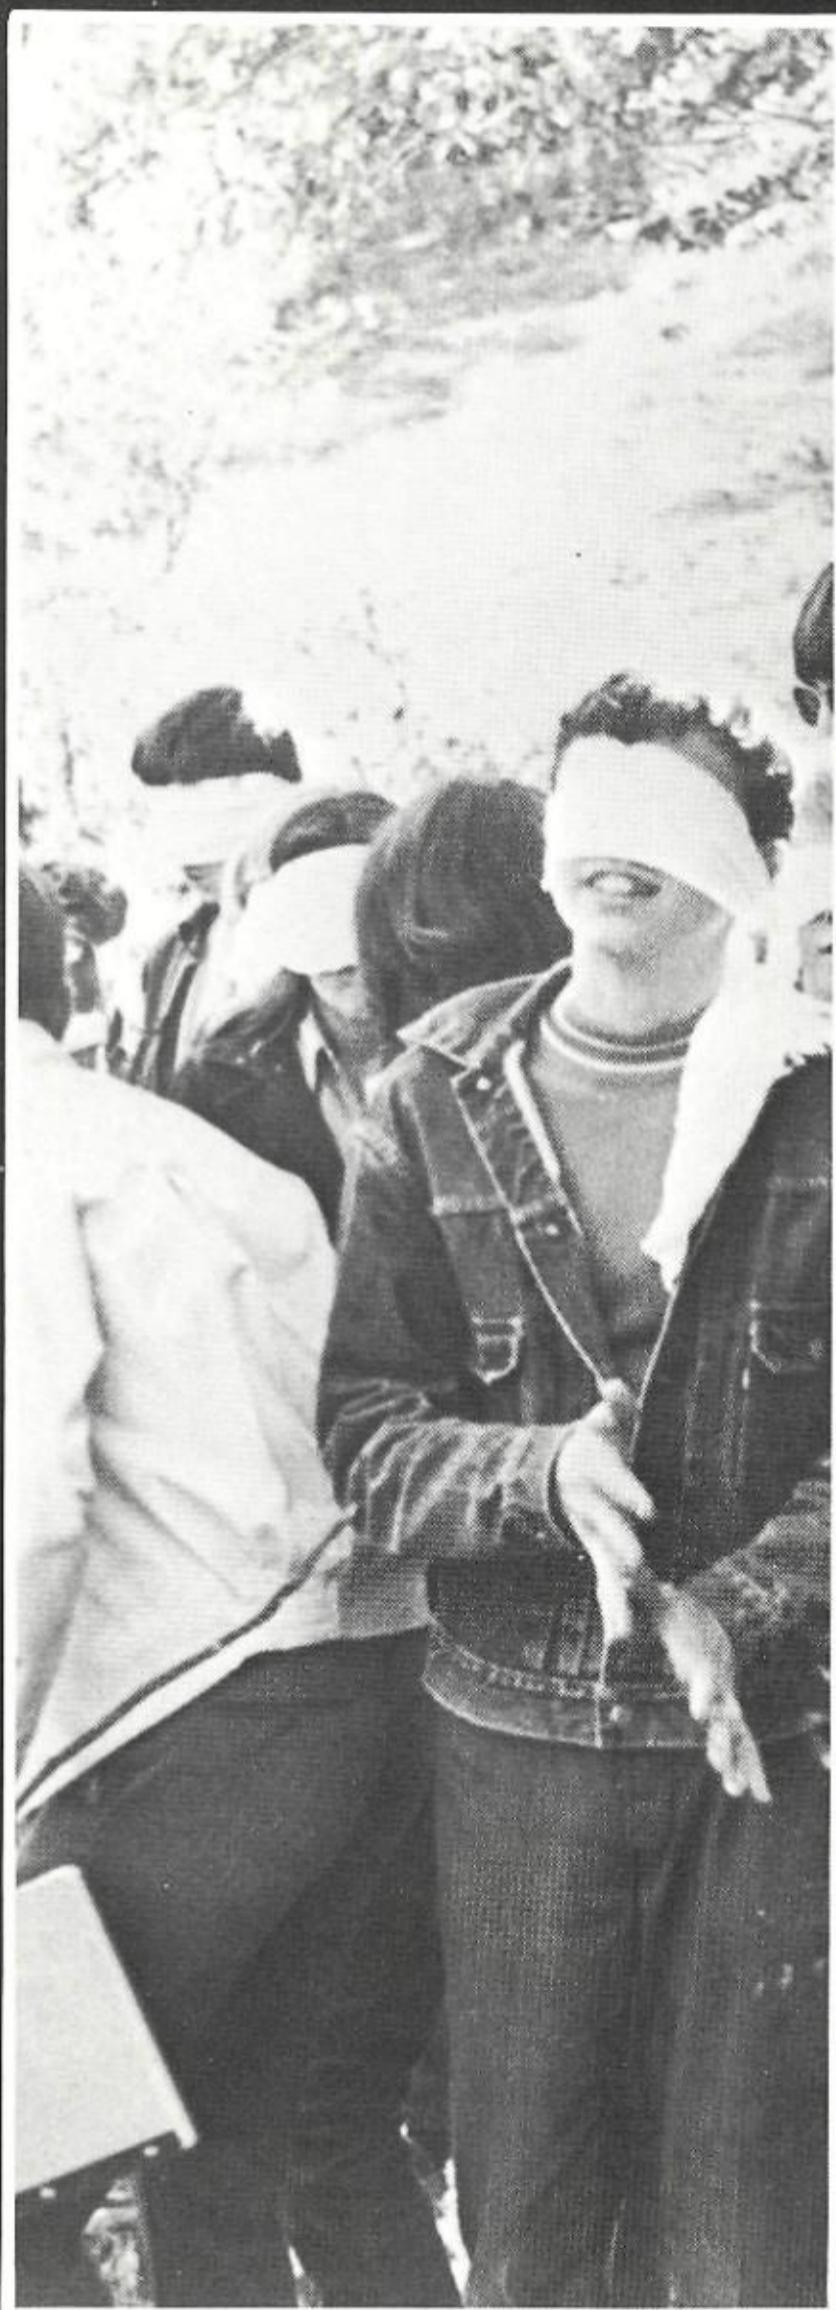

An information shelf is kept which contains pamphlets and bulletins about vocations and colleges. Through frequent counseling sessions, the use of this material and the personal records of the student, the counselor is able to advise each student as an individual.

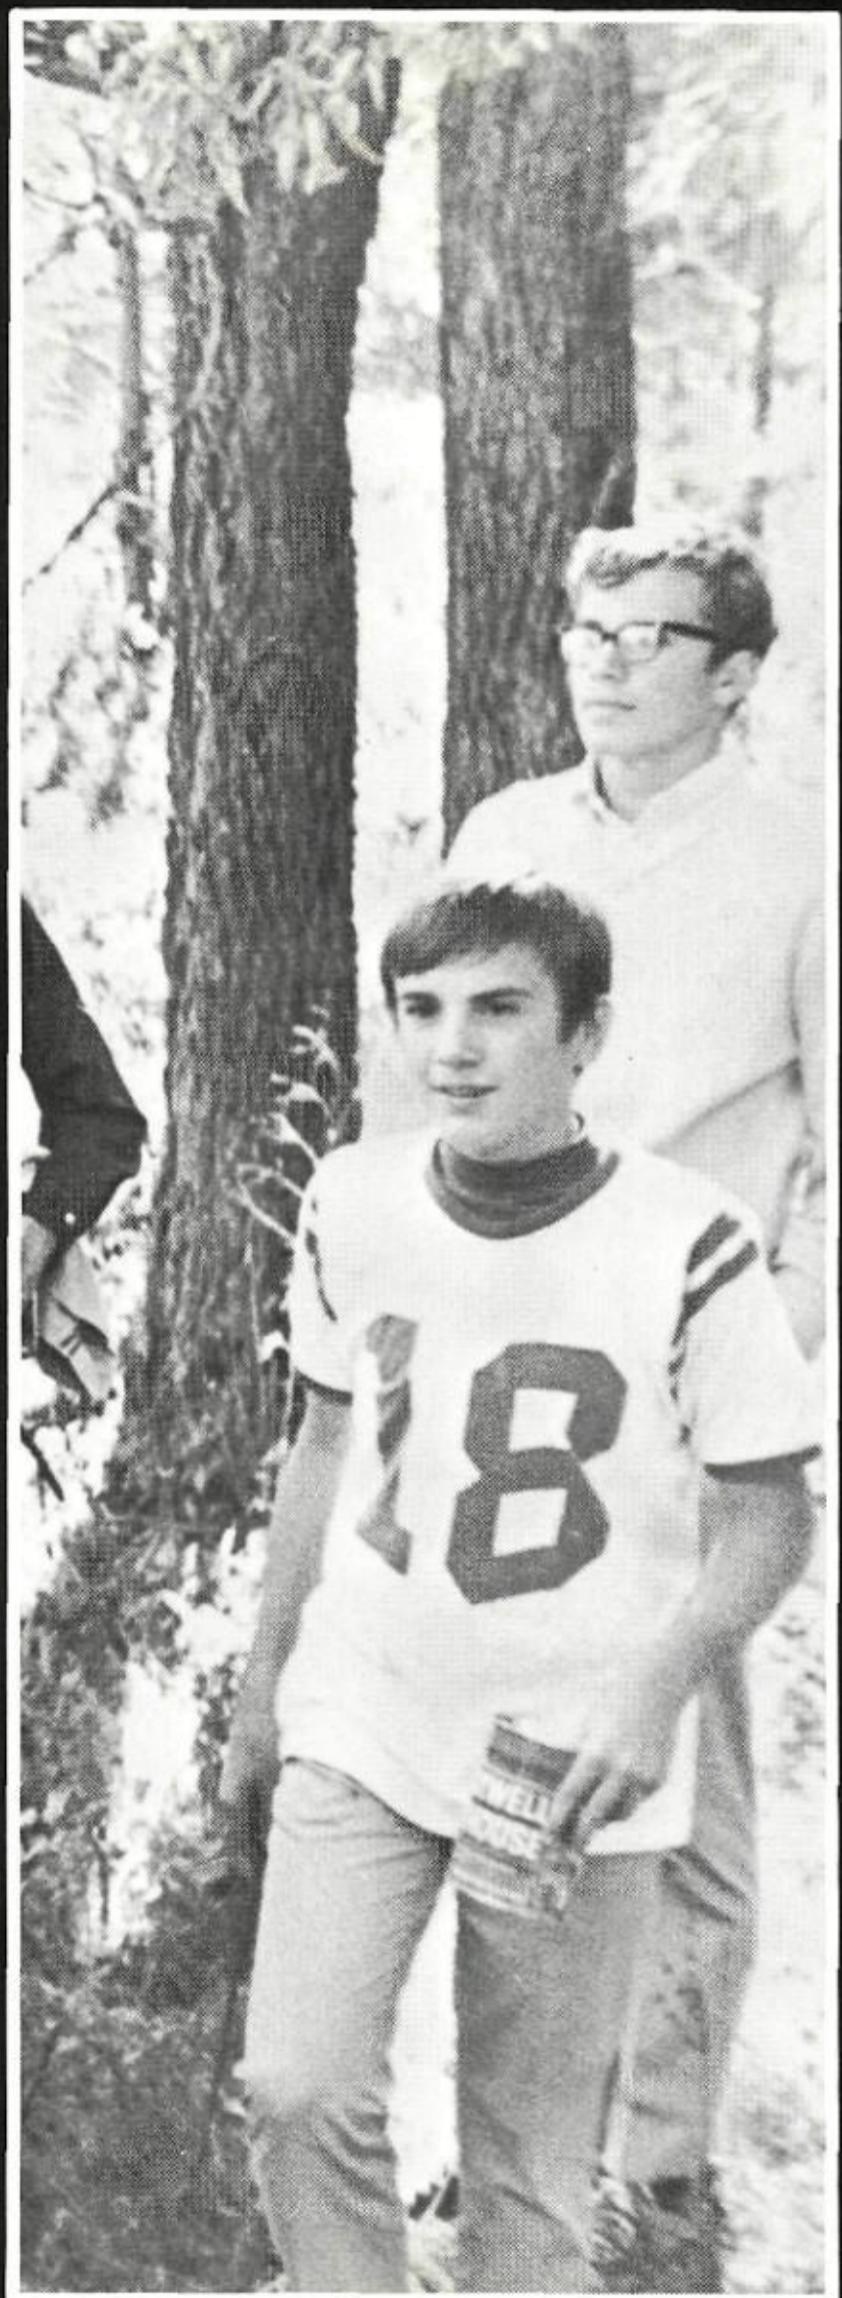

Guidance Counseling

BELOW: This student listens intently as he receives advice on planning his schedule for high school from the guidance counselor. (Bill Drussa, Mr. Mullins). LEFT: Mr. Paul Mullins received his M.Ed. in Guidance Counseling from Missouri University. ABOVE: With his busy schedule, it is sometimes necessary to receive advice while in route to class. (Bryan Luna, Mr. Mullins, Rusty Smith).

The Student Council achieved many of their goals this year. They increased school spirit and provided leadership for the entire student body.

The year began with the annual Student Council luncheon where Dr. Gardner was chosen as sponsor. Greenwood representatives obtained new ideas from other student governments in a workshop held at Hillcrest. School spirit was promoted by the selling of beat ribbons and by the traditional homecoming car caravan. Other activities included a student lounge cleanup, Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets, and a breakfast honoring city-wide A.F.S. students. The election of new officers took place in March. The year closed in May with a picnic and Honor Day.

Yearbook

This year's Greenwood Annual Staff worked hard to compile memories of the year's varied activities and traditions. To complete the preliminary work done by the editors, caption and copy writing sessions were held after school. Layouts had to be drawn, pictures taken and cropped and final copies approved before each shipment was sent in for publication. With the help of Mr. Kinsey and Miss Prideaux as sponsors, the editors, writers and typists were able to meet each deadline.

Yearbook activities drew to a close with the traditional Annual Day signing of the yearbooks.

The traditional signing of the annuals on Annual Day is a very enjoyable time, especially for a senior. (Paul Meyer).

Cub Standard

Reporting school news in an interesting manner and keeping the student body well informed was the goal of the 1970-71 Cub Standard staff. Editors, writers, typists, photographers and the sponsor united to achieve this goal in the 4-page publication.

The Feature page entertained readers with amusing stories and human interest articles. On the other hand, news and sports articles kept everyone informed on important school happenings, while the editorial page exchanged with other schools their ideas and outlooks.

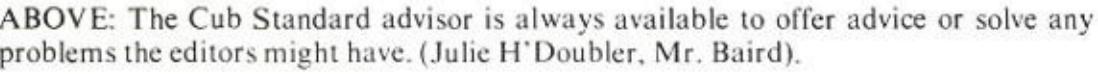

We should all be proud that the Cub Standard strove to maintain its reputation for high standards under the sponsorship of Mr. Charles Baird, and the leadership of our editors who did a fine job at the Columbia Summer Journalism Clinic.

ABOVE: Finished Cub Standards give a feeling of pride to editors. All staff members work hard to insure a good issue. (Julie H'Doubler).

Drum Corps

The Greenwood Drum and Bugle Corps, led by Major Sharon Savage and Majorette Nancy Petiford, proved that hard work and practice was well worth a good performance. Drilling new routines, in early morning hours during the summer, resulted in fine showings in three home games, a parade, and a half-time routine at the state play-off game. A breakfast, picnic and the athletic banquet helped round out the activities for the Drum Corps.

Officers this year were President Inez Tibbits; Marilyn Ward, Vice-President; Roxanne Kinsey, Secretary; and Sponsor, Dr. McCurry.

Alert and eager Drum Corps members find early morning practice to be stimulating as well as profitable in learning and perfecting new routines. (Joni Simmons, Mary Haseltine, Judy Harvey, Nancy Ward).

Cheer and Assemblies

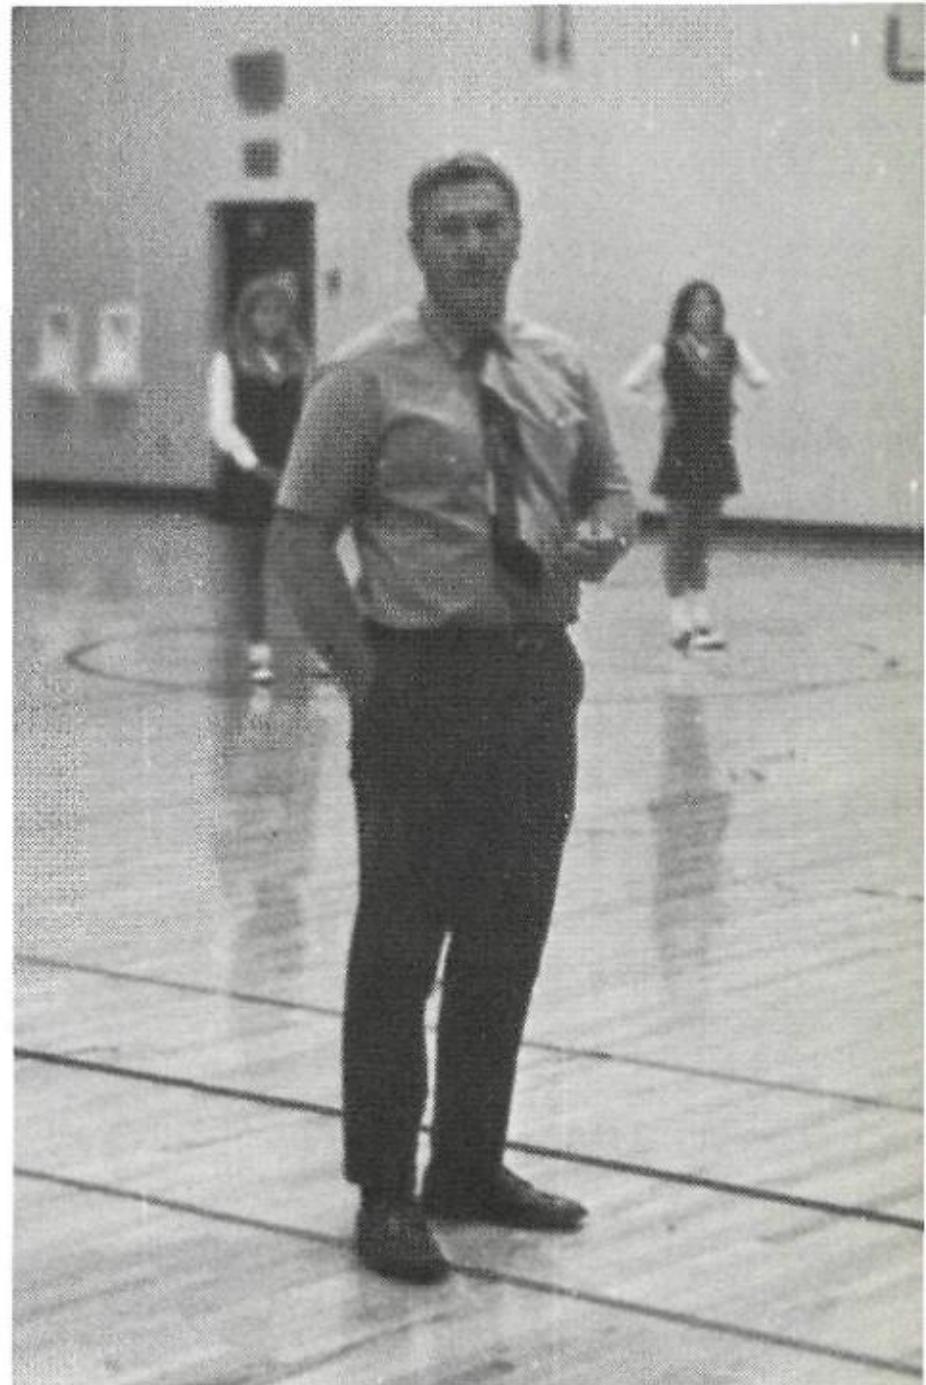

Throughout the years G.H.S. cheerleaders have played a very important part in creating school spirit.

By attending the cheerleading clinics and devoting many hours for practice they were always able to present the students with unique and spirit raising assemblies.

Pep assemblies played a very important role in creating school spirit. Through the many and varied assemblies this spirit was continued through the year.

Universal friendship and good will among nations is the goal of the American Field Service Exchange program. The A.F.S., which has been in effect since 1947, has given American students and those of other nations an opportunity to live in different countries around the world.

Greenwood has taken part in this exchange program since 1960. Students from all parts of the world have visited the school for one year, and five GHS students have had the opportunity to go to lands in Europe, Asia, and South America.

The program at Greenwood is supported by gifts and contributions, and the "Roman Market Days," sponsored by the Latin Club.

During the year, our A.F.S. student was Mike el Fakharani from Alexandria, Egypt. He lived with the Robert Gilmore family and son, Tom.

Latin Club

The Latin Club had a busy year climaxed by the traditional Roman Market Days festivities. Latin I members traveled through Hades, becoming members of the club. Latin carols were sung by the members and alumni during Christmas. In the spring, two events were held. Roman Market Days raised funds for A.F.S. and a banquet concluded the year's events. Officers of the Latin Club were Peter H'Doubler, president; Mark Haseltine, vice-president; Joni Simmons, secretary; and Mike Magers, treasurer. The club was sponsored by Mrs. Mildred Rice.

Latin I members find that the trip through Hades is both fun and a learning experience, as they participate in the old Roman customs and tortures.

Spanish Club

Spanish club participated in many fun-filled activities this year. The club enabled students to further their knowledge of the people who speak the language they studied.

Christmas was a busy season for the Spanish Club. Besides singing carols, pinatas were made for a Christmas banquet and the room was decorated.

Other activities included a festive banquet and dinner at Casa Montez. Spanish Club officers were Judy Harvey, president; Charles Tegeler, vice-president; Chuck Tillman, secretary; Jean Paul Bradshaw, treasurer. Spanish Club was sponsored by Mrs. Ruth Norton.

Spanish banquet at Casa Montez is both enjoyable and educational. (Jean Paul Bradshaw, Mike el Fakharani, Charles Tegeler, Judy Harvey, Mrs. Norton).

The French Club provided students with a study of the French people and their customs outside of the regular classroom study.

At Christmastime the French Club sang French carols in the hall and celebrated Christmas with French customs at a party.

Patti Ellis led the French Club this year as president. She was assisted by Charrie Roberts, Vice President; and Debby McDowell, Secretary-Treasurer. Mrs. Mary Pilant sponsored the club.

French Club

French Club members made Christmas ornaments to decorate the French room during the Christmas season. This French Club member enjoys adding her ornaments to the Christmas tree in the French room. (Cynthia Chalfant).

Trying out for Song Spinners is not as hard as it appears. Though slightly nervous and hopeful of being selected, this Junior soon realizes that tryouts are easy. (Dr. McCurry, Vicki Elsey).

Song Spinners

Song Spinners, originally organized in 1956, once again gave music students a chance to put their talent to use. Tryouts were held in the fall during which all interested high school students were required to sight-read and sing a harmony part. One of their performances was the Easter cantata at Greenwood. Tune Twisters were later chosen from this group.

This year's football team ended the conference season with a 10-0 record making the Jays the undisputed conference champs for the first time in the history of Greenwood.

The Bluejay's perfect record was spoiled, however, by a 14-6 loss in the state playoffs for the Class 1-A title.

The "B" team finished the year with a 1-4 mark. Valuable experience was gained by the entire squad and several varsity players were recognized for their talents by receiving all-conference, all-Ozark and all-state honors. Honored also was head coach Paul Mullins who was named Coach of the Year in the city for the second time.

Basketball

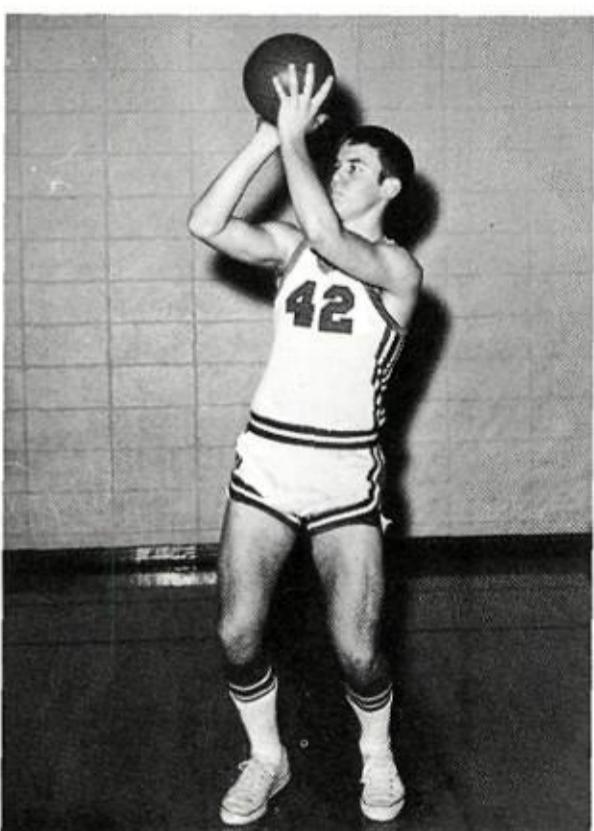

Four returning lettermen helped to provide leadership for this year's Varsity Basketball team. The season proved to be a successful one with the outstanding coaching of Larry Atwood, who developed the members into a superior team. Spirit and enthusiasm from the crowd cheered the Bluejays on to victory. A busy schedule for the B-team, as well as the seventh and eighth grade teams, gave them the needed experience for the coming basketball seasons.

Greenwood Track Lettermen: KNEELING: Bob Mace, Stan Smith, Joe Millsap, Eric Shryer, SECOND ROW: David Bingham, Buzz Oatman, Jim Corbett, Paul Meyer, Coach Larry Atwood.

UPPER LEFT: Good form is found to be an essential element in preparing the approach for the broad jump. (Mike Lea). ABOVE: Last minute advice and warnings are given by the coaches as the boys get ready for their next muscle-straining event. The outcome of all their hard work and training may well be another victory for the Jays. (Coach Paul Mullins, Senior letterman Jim Corbett).

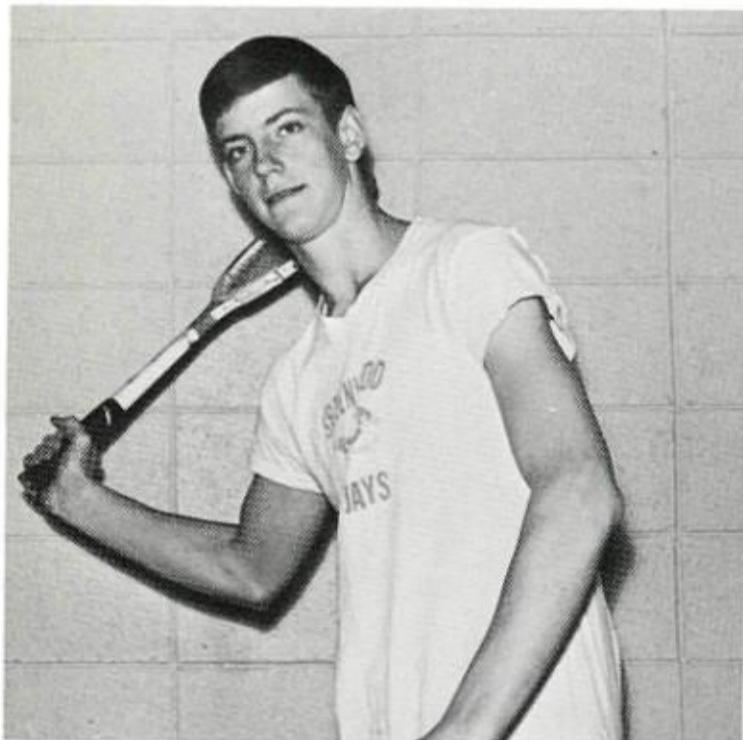

Track

Long hours of practice and training paid off for Greenwood's enthusiastic track team this year. All members of the team contributed and proved that team work can pay off. Some areas the track team took part and progressed in were the 440 and 880, broad jump and hurdling competition. Two large contributions to the team this year were Greenwood's several lettermen and the fine leadership of Coach Atwood.

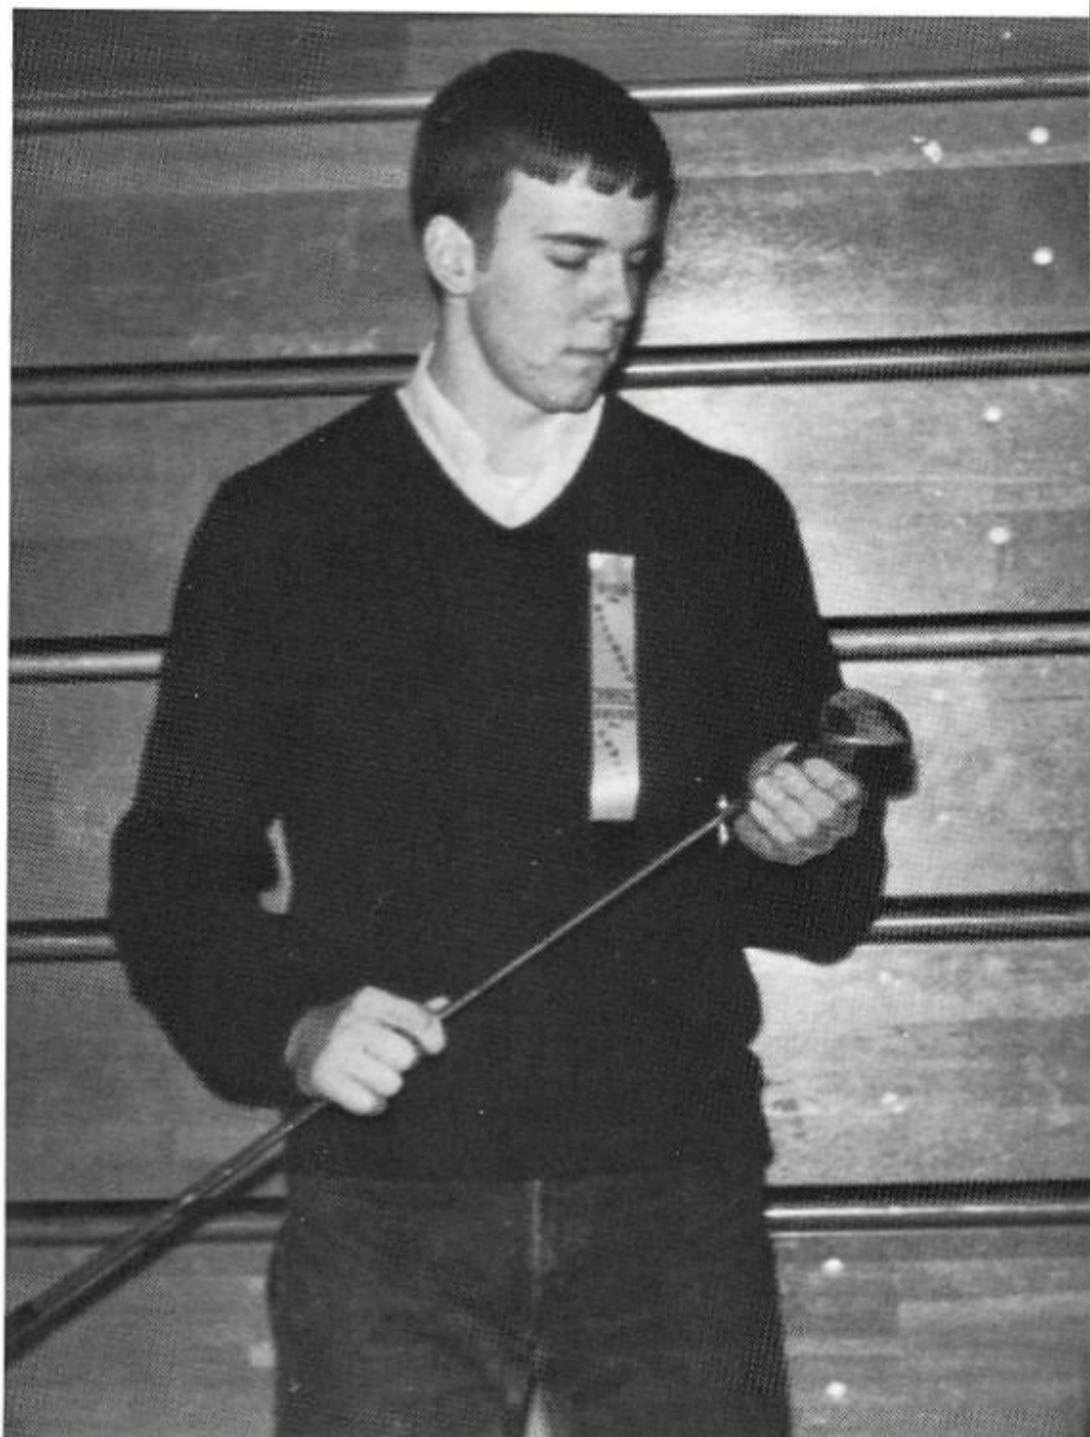

Much practice and determination on the part of the boys are likely to result in a winning entry in the shot-put competition in the next meet. (Buzz Oatman).

Tennis Golf

Returning lettermen in both tennis and golf have made the spring season enjoyable and rewarding. Every participant in these two sports regarded golf and tennis as being competitive, but they also enjoyed it as a personal recreational activity in their free time. Tennis and golf teams were under the supervision of Coach Mullins.

Another step on the scholastic ladder was taken as the Seventh Graders entered Junior High. It was an exciting experience and many new friends were made.

With the help of Mrs. Rice, the Seventh Grade sponsor, the class was able to learn to work together by holding class meetings, electing class officers and participating in Student Council activities.

During Homecoming and Christmas, they worked together to provide decorations and won second place on their Christmas display. Class parties, cheerleading, football and basketball games also became important activities for the Seventh Grade.

The Eighth Grade had many new responsibilities this year. They took an active part in student government through participating in the elections of Homecoming Queen, Fair and Sir Greenwood, and the student body officers. Eighth Grade girls were also permitted to try out for Drum Corps in the spring. The three-year-old tradition of having a party for the Seventh Grade was also planned and carried out by the active Eighth Grade class this year. A new challenge was presented to class members as they took part in these various activities.

Freshman

The leap from Junior High to High School meant more opportunities and hard work for the Freshmen this year. Ninth Grade girls were able to participate in Drum Corps and try out for cheerleading in the spring. The Freshmen boys had the chance to participate in varsity and junior varsity sports. They also enjoyed taking part in other school activities such as homecoming, language clubs, and chorus.

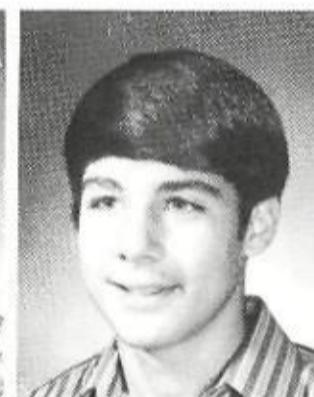

Being a Freshmen meant more responsibility as they experimented with the Ninth Grade Block. It also meant hard study as their grades were put on a permanent transcript.

The Ninth Grade is looking forward to the remainder of their High School years with anticipation because of such a successful Freshman year.

Sophomores

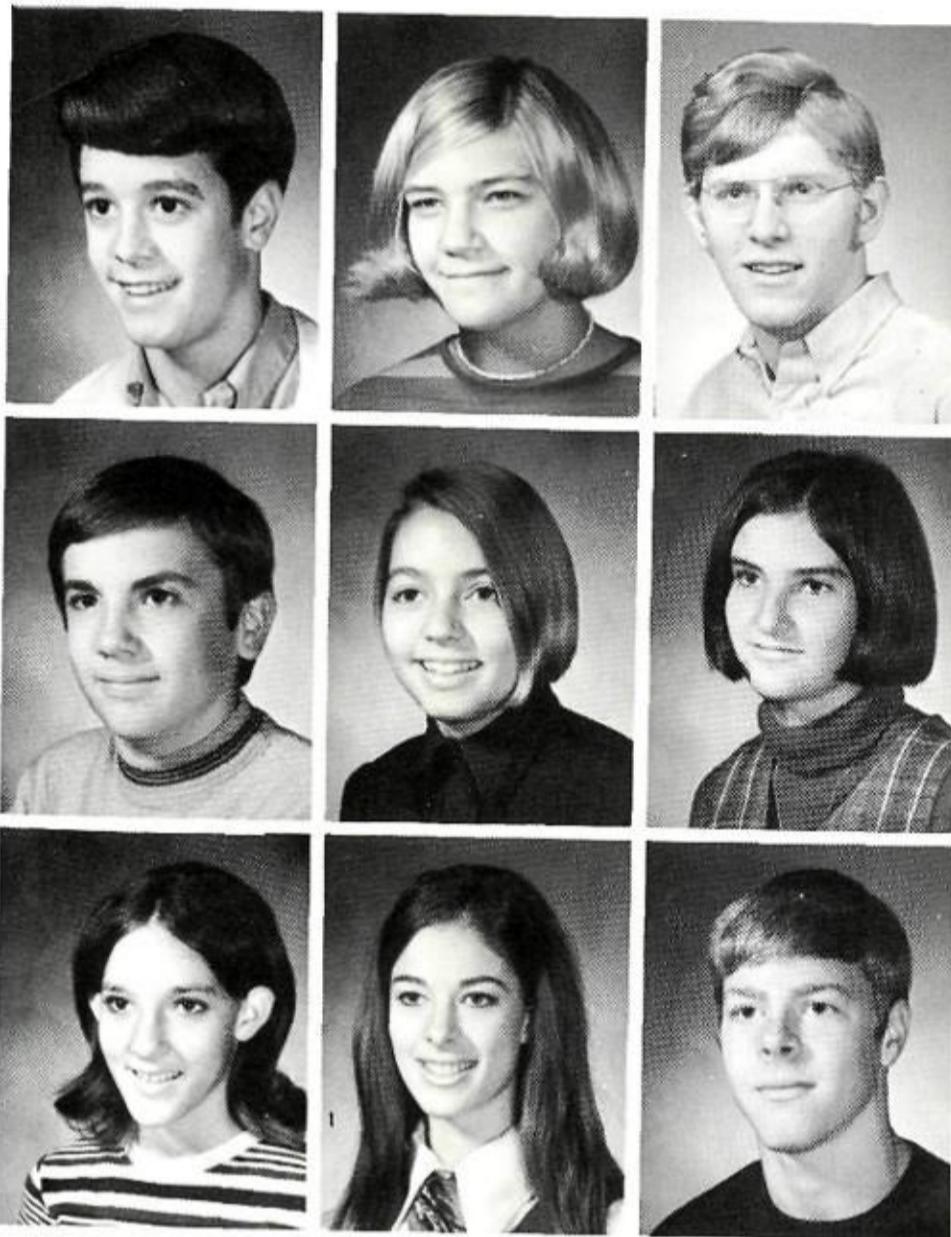

With the title of Sophomore come many new responsibilities, as these hardworking 10th graders have discovered.

The Blue and Gold Tournament, not only a responsibility but a tradition as well, took a good portion of a Sophomore's time.

Coming into the middle of their high school years, they realized that tomorrow and the future take a lot of planning. This year has done much to prepare them as they learned to take the hardships along with the fun.

Juniors

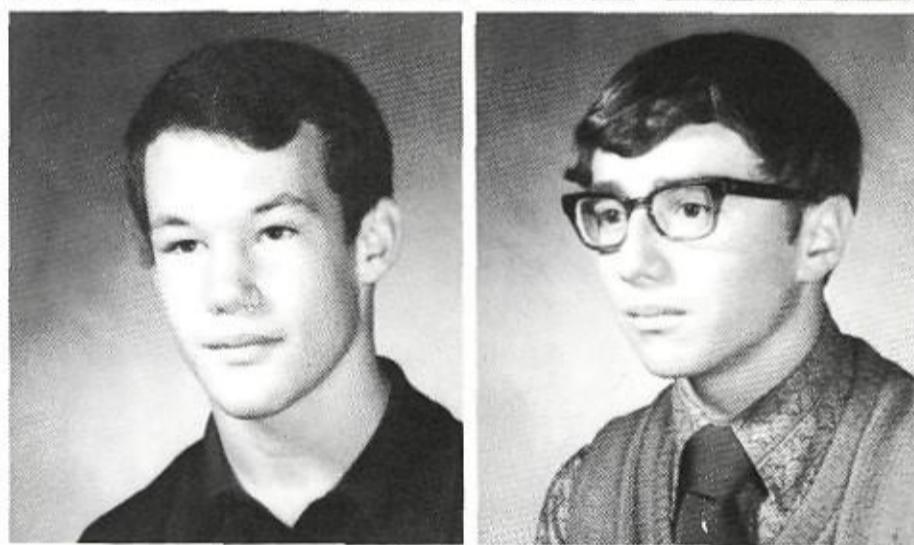

For the Juniors, this year was filled with new responsibilities and lots of decisions.

Preparations for the Junior-Senior Prom were considered one of the most important events of the year. Money was provided for the prom by concession stands at the games, cookie sales, and chili and pie suppers and lots of hard work.

Between studying and money-making, the Juniors found time to order their long awaited class rings. The Juniors also furnished the flowers for Honor Day.

Seniors enjoy times with the A.F.S. student. (Mike el Fakharani).

Traditions and memories, sad and happy times, were what these Seniors remembered. As the year drew to a close, Seniors realized that it would be the last time to enjoy activities together as a group. Class decorations, bus rides and parties were only some of the activities in which the Seniors took part. Senior officers were Steve Rich, President; Rick McQueary, Vice-President; Jim Corbett, Secretary-Treasurer. Upon graduation they left behind cherished memories, friends and a part of themselves to be remembered at Greenwood forever.

Traditions

Times of happiness, times of sorrow, each but a memory of the past and a hope for the future.

Waiting for the announcement of the 1970-71 Homecoming Queen is a very exciting moment for these three candidates. (Julie H'Doubler, Pete Zerr, Mary Haseltine, Rick McQueary, Susie Farthing, Gary Herrick).

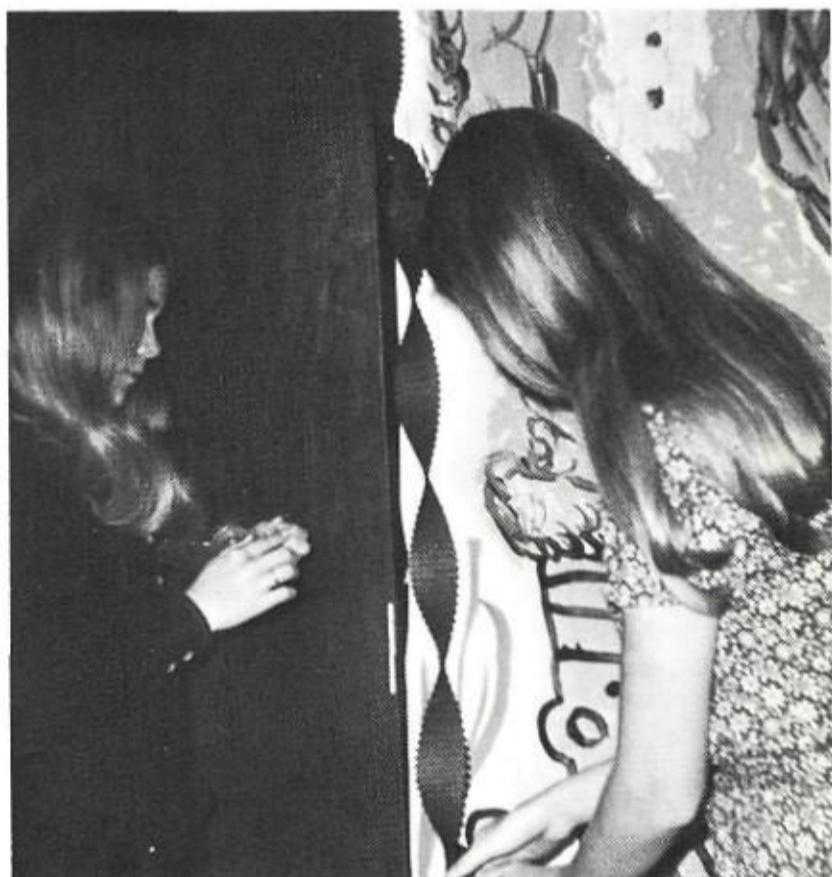

Everyone is all smiles in the queen's court after the announcement of this year's Homecoming Queen by the student body president. (Susie Farthing, Mary Haseltine, Rick McQueary, Julie H'Doubler).

Homecoming '70

Homecoming began traditionally this year with the decorating of the halls and a car caravan. Half-time ceremonies continued even through the rain with much enthusiasm. The special routine planned by the Drum Corps had to be altered but was still appreciated. The crowning of the Homecoming Queen, Mary Haseltine, highlighted the evening's events. Julie H'Doubler and Susie Farthing were the attendants. The theme "A Time to Remember" prevailed over the traditional homecoming dance which climaxed the week's events.

A Joyous Christmas

Christmas at GHS was again a wonderful combination of treasured traditions and imaginative ideas to deck the halls. While the seventh grade excitedly created their first hall decorations, another class of seniors draped the "Greenwood Tree" in its traditional grandeur (a first place entry!).

Certainly the most anticipated activity of this season was caroling in the halls. All students and teachers congregated before the central office singing not only old favorites, but foreign carols presented by each language club.

Climaxing the festive week were the elementary carol program and high school cantata. Giving baskets to needy families concluded the traditions of a Greenwood Christmas.

Junior-Senior Prom

The spring feeling and a maze of hedges set the mood for the 1971 Junior-Senior Prom. The 1971 Seniors were the honored guests at the May 22nd event but faculty members, Junior and Sophomore representatives also enjoyed the splendor of "Amazin May."

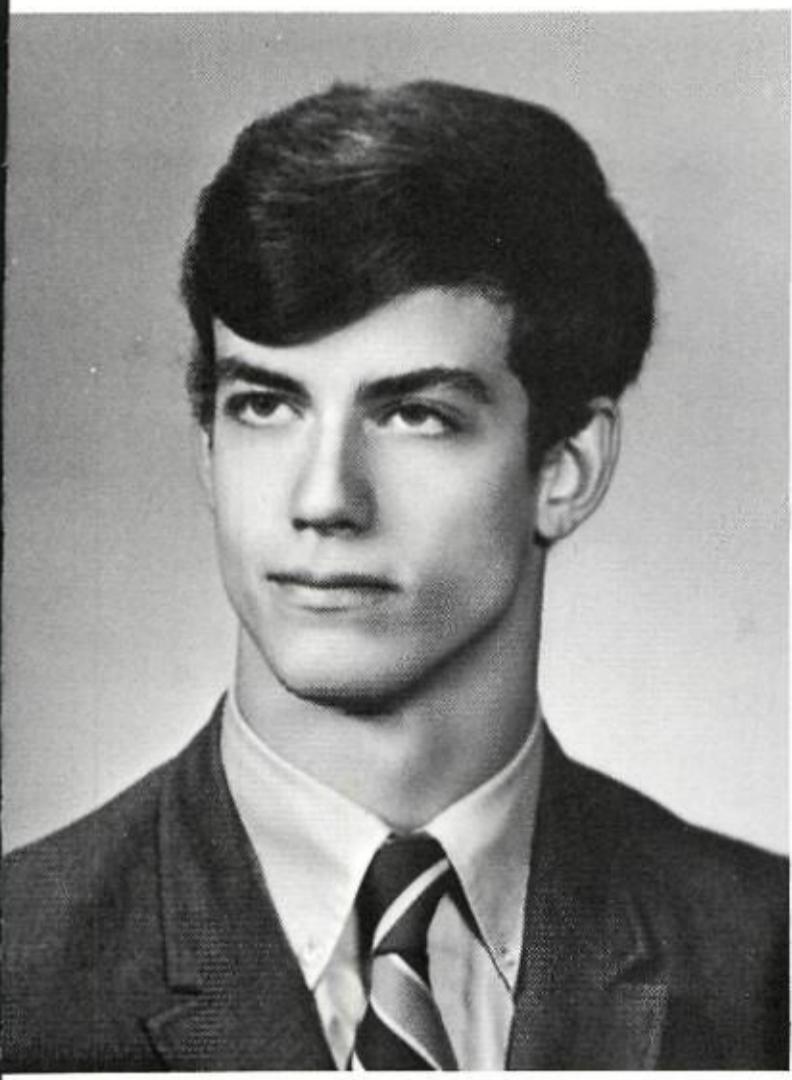

Following the dinner at the Holiday Inn, guests enjoyed dancing to the music of the Lavendar Hill Mob.

Throughout the year, the Junior Class worked at concession stands, hosted chili suppers and sponsored fund-raising projects to provide the prom for the graduating Seniors.

Paul Meyer, Valedictorian

Top scholastic honors in the Senior Class were achieved this year by Paul Meyer, Valedictorian and Rick McQueary, Salutatorian. Their grade point averages were 10.8 and 10.6 respectively.

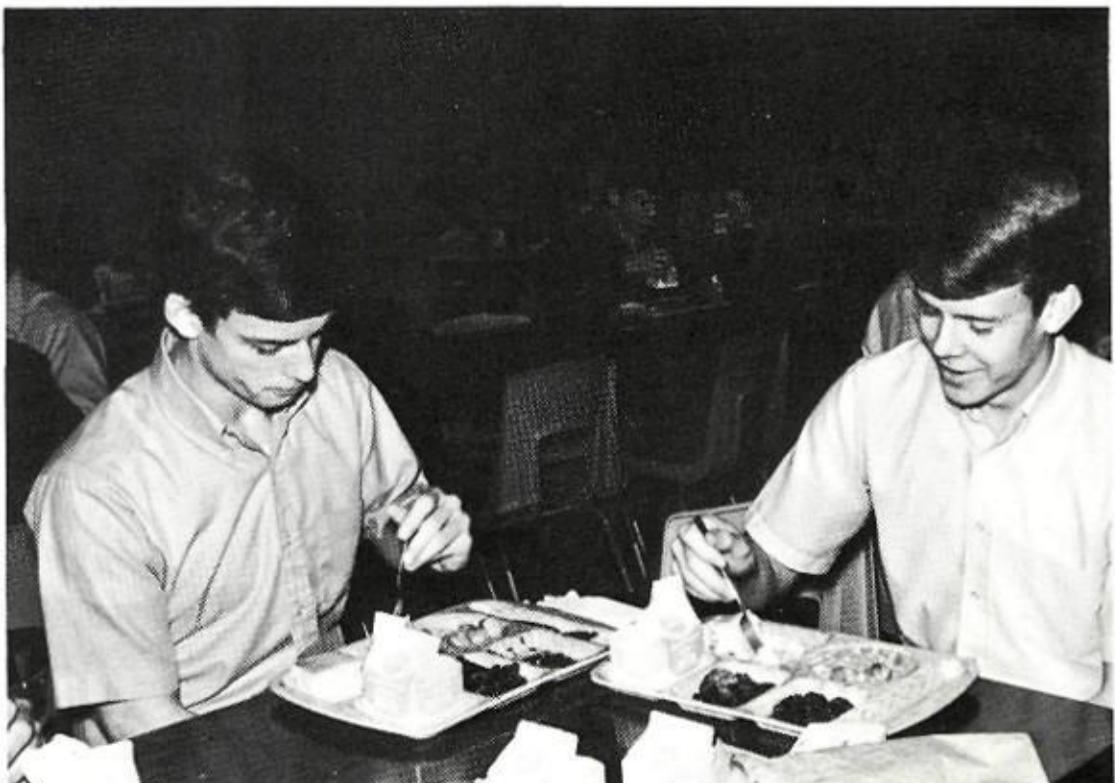

The grade point averages were based on the sixth term, including all subjects from grades nine through twelve.

Paul served as class president for two years, and as Student Council representative for two years. During his Senior year he served as a Junior Rotarian and was elected Student Body President. He was also active in football, basketball and track.

Rick was also active in school functions. He served as Class President and was a Student Council representative for five years. He was chosen to go to Boy's State, served as Junior Rotarian, and was elected Sir Greenwood by the student body.

Fair and Sir Greenwood are excellent examples of well-rounded Greenwood students. (Sarah H'Doubler, Rick McQueary).

Honor Day, begun in 1924, is an old and cherished tradition at Greenwood. Students were recognized for outstanding accomplishments in scholarship, leadership, athletics, or other achievements. This year, Sarah H'Doubler and Rick McQueary, elected for their personality, popularity, and citizenship, reigned as Fair and Sir Greenwood. An American Beauty rose, symbol of beauty, was bestowed upon each student as he was admitted to the "Order of The Rose."
